Most of the about 500 jars of the coffee, packaged in 12-jar cases, was sold to local stores and has been returned, Strong added.

George Gary Mendus, 40, of 208
Thomas St., Bay St. Louis, and
Beverly Jo Thornton, 36, of the same

County Jail Wednesday awaiting a preliminary hearing.

Strong said the recovered coffee, bearing the brand name Folger's Instant Coffee Crystals and packaged in eight-ounce jars, is worth more than $1,800 at current retail prices.

Hancock Industries Manager
George Graves said most of the jars can be identified because they contain either a free napkin ring or coupons for free meals in restaurants in major southwestern cities.

He explained that Hancock Industries employees had been attaching the packages with the napkin rings and coupons to the col-fee jars.

He added that he believes most of the coffee has been recovered.
"Without the cooperation of Harrison County, this property would probably not have been recovered,"
Strong said.

All boys and girls ages 5-15 may register for the program.

A $15 registration fee is charged for the first child, $10 for the second child in the same family and registration for the third child is free.

The county has acquired the assistance of a Hancock County jail trustee who is a qualified diesel mechanic and is already working on several trucks and machines, something Johnson says will save on repair costs.

The slab for the barn was poured on Nov. 21. Actual construction, delayed intermittently by rain, began Nov. 24.

The shop section has actually been in use since the county resumed work after the Christmas-New Johnson said he is very pleased to be in the barn after several months in a temporary office in the community center.

down in a permanent location, our work will go more smoothly," he

Most of the about 360 jars of the coffee, packaged in 18-jar cases, was sold to local stores and has been returned, Strong added.

George Gary Mendus, 40, of 208
Thomas St., Bay St. Louis, and Beverly Jo Thornton, 36, of the same both were seen in the Hancock County Jail Wednesday awaiting a preliminary hearing.

Strong said the recovered coffee,
bearing the brand name Folger's Instant Coffee Crystals and packaged in eight-ounce jars, is worth more than $1,000 at current retail prices.

Hancock Industries Manager
George Graves said most of the jars
can be identified because they contain either a free napkin ring or coupons for free meals in restaurants in major southwestern cities.

He explained that Hancock Industries employees had been attaching the packages with the napkin rings and coupons to the coffee jars.

He added that he believes most of the coffee has been recovered.
"Without the cooperation of Hancock County, this property would probably not have been recovered,"
Strong said.

EROSION PROJECT—Doug Stephens of the Hancock County Soil Conservation District places marker at the edge of a bluff at a bend in Jourdan River in McLeod

Water Park which is targeted for a $200,000 erosion control project. (Staff photo by Brenda Heathcock)

Officials awaiting final erosion project plans

By BRENDA HEATHCOCK
Soil Conservation District officials are waiting for final project plans to prevent further erosion at a bend of the Jourdan River in McLeod Water Park.

The combination of the current in the U-shaped bend of the river and the sandy soil has caused extensive erosion at the site, according to Doug Stephens of the Soil Conservation District.

"During the past two and a half years erosion has moved the edge of the bluff nearly three feet back," he added.

Engineers say the current alone is not enough to cause the erosion but it is mainly due to the very sandy soil in the area, Stephens said.

He said engineers testing the soil in the area found nothing but sand after digging on five feet down.

"There is already a bluff, nearly a quarter of a mile long, measuring as high as 17 feet in some places,"

Stephens added.

Funding for 80 percent of the $200,000 project is being provided by the federal authority in the Emergency Watershed Protection Act.

Stephens said he was notified in late December of the availability of the funds through the federal project.

The remaining 20 percent of the cost or approximately $40,000 is being equally shared by the Pearl River Basin Development District and the Hancock County government.

"If the work is not completed, pieces of the bank are going to keep falling off," Stephens said.

However Stephens fears additional project costs may prevent the project.

Bay school board moving toward five elected members

By DENA BISNETTE
At request of Waveland Mayor John Longo Jr., the Bay St. Louis-Waveland School District Board has agreed to pursue a proposal for a fully elected five-member board.

The board had gone on record as supporting a fully elected board several months ago but had taken no other action.

Longo, who addressed Monday night's school board meeting, requested action on the proposal, which he had originally submitted in December.

The mayor contends that having the majority of board members appointed by one municipality does not provide the other municipality with proper representation, although student populations in both cities are about equal.

The board agreed to authorize Superintendent of Education Roger Oge' to use the district's personnel or volunteers to compile the information necessary to have the legislation that created the board changed.

According to Longo, the local and private bill that originally created the district authorized a board consisting of four members appointed by the Bay St. Louis City Council, and one elected member from the outside territory.

The outside territory includes Waveland and a section of unincorporated property in the county.

In 1976, residents of the outside territory successfully petitioned to have the board changed to three appointed members and two elected members.

Presently, both elected members are from Waveland, but anyone from the outside territory may run for the board seats.

Longo proposed using a districting system similar to that used in Waveland's current redistricting project, which is designed to equalize the number of voters in each ward without diluting minority voting strength.

A show of hands School Board President Betty Diboll requested from the Bay St. Louis residents in an audience of about 15 people showed unanimous favor for an election.

Board Member Cyril Glover asked if the district lines could be drawn from east to west, allowing each district to include parts of both cities.

Longo said another possibility would be two districts in each city and one split between the two cities.

After the board unanimously approved elected Board Member L.D.

Carter's motion for the authorization, Longo immediately volunteered his services.

"We're all in this school district together," the mayor said, pointing out that the City of Waveland is required to provide the same financial support for the district as Bay St. Louis, despite less representation.

In another matter regarding the election of the board members, the superintendent was authorized to use district personnel or volunteers and to add personnel if necessary to prepare statistics to be submitted to the Voting Rights Division of the U.S. Department of Justice.

The request for the authorization was submitted to the board by its attorney, Lucien Gex, through Oge' because Gex was absent from the meeting.

The Justice Department has asked for statistics on school district

Port commission to construct cattle guard over railroad

By BRENDA HEATHCOCK
Hancock County Port and Harbor officials agreed Monday to install a cattle guard across the commission's railroad tracks which divide Ernest Ladner's property off the Ansley Road.

Ladner will provide the material for the project but the commission will authorize the labor for the project.

Port Director James DeBlanc said cost of the project is expected to be substantially less than $500.

In other business the commission: —Passed a resolution authorizing payment of $6,654 for interest due to Economic Development Administration.

—Authorized a pay request by Leon C. Miles, Inc., contractors of a new building at Port Bienville Industrial Park, in the amount of $22,680.

—Conducted an executive session to discuss personnel matters.

—Recessed until Thursday, Feb. 12 at 2 p.m.

Sheriff's Department recovers stolen coffee

By DENA BISNETTE
The Hancock County Sheriff's Department has recovered about 18 cases of stolen coffee and is looking for more.

Investigator Glenn Strong said the coffee was apparently taken between 3 p.m. and 3:30 p.m. Tuesday from a Port Bienville building housing Hancock Industries, an arm of Gulf Coast Mental Health Center that provides job training for the mentally retarded.

Hancock County Sheriff Ronald Peterson said anyone who has bought some of the stolen product should return it to the sheriff's office.

No charges will be brought against anyone who returns some of the coffee, he added.

Most of the about 360 jars of the coffee, packaged in 18-jar cases, was sold to local stores and has been returned, Strong added.

George Gary Mendis, 40, of 206 Thomas St., Bay St. Louis, and Beverly Jo Thornton, 36, of the same address, were stopped in Gulfport on a traffic violation by two Harrison County officers shortly after 6 p.m. Tuesday.

The two officers, seeing the coffee in the borrowed truck Mendis and Thornton were riding in, interviewed the two suspects and contacted the Hancock County Sheriff's Department, the investigator said.

The burglary had not yet been discovered and reported, but the sheriff's department contacted Hancock Industries.

According to Strong, Mendis is charged with burglary of a business and his bond has been set at $5,000. Bond for Thornton, charged with possession of stolen property, is $2,500.

Both were still in the Hancock County Jail Wednesday awaiting a preliminary hearing.

Strong said the recovered coffee, bearing the brand name Folger's Instant Coffee Crystals and packaged in eight-ounce jars, is worth more than $1,800 at current retail prices.

Hancock Industries Manager George Graves said most of the jars can be identified because they contain either a free napkin ring or coupons for free meals in restaurants in major southwestern cities.

He explained that Hancock Industries employees had been attaching the packages with the napkin rings and coupons to the coffee jars.

He added that he believes most of the coffee has been recovered.

"Without the cooperation of Harrison County, this property would probably not have been recovered," Strong said.

Central barn finished, passes final inspection

By DENA BISNETTE
The Hancock County Central Maintenance Barn in Kiln has passed final inspection.

The barn, located next to the Highway 43 Community Center and Ballpark, was completed Friday and inspected Tuesday by Beat Five Supervisor James Travirca and contractor's representative Sid Oden.

Travirca is a former contractor and was selected by the board to oversee the project, contracted to Leon C. Miles Inc.

The supervisor said the building came in at about $800 less than the $79,400 contract.

The board's original estimate on the building, constructed from plans for a Harrison County barn that had been redrawn by Travirca, was $81,000.

Travirca had made a few modifications in the barn's design that he said would make the structure less expensive as well as more suited to Hancock County's needs.

About a quarter of the metal building, which is decorated with a brick veneer front, houses a reception area, an office for County Maintenance Superintendent Bill Johnson, a meeting room for county foremen and storage areas.

The back section is designed with a higher roof to allow dump truck bodies to be raised and road and bridge equipment to be parked inside for maintenance.

The county has acquired the assistance of a Hancock County jail trusty who is a qualified diesel mechanic and is already working on several trucks and machines, something Johnson says will save on repair costs.

The slab for the barn was poured on Nov. 21. Actual construction, delayed intermittently by rain, began Nov. 21.

The shop section has actually been in use since the county resumed work after the Christmas-New Year's holiday.

Johnson said he is very pleased to be in the barn after several months in a temporary office in the community center.

"Maybe now that we have settled down in a permanent location, our work will go more smoothly," he commented. The parking lot of the facility has not yet been paved, but Travirca said he plans to ask the board to authorize that work at a later date. The supervisors will meet Friday at 9 a.m. in the upstairs boardroom of the Hancock County Courthouse.

Baptist Education Day set for Sunday

Every year the third Sunday of February is set aside by the Education Commission of the Southern Baptist Convention as Baptist Seminary, College and School Day.

This year churches are especially encouraged to remember their educational institutions on February 15.

Baptist colleges and schools strive to offer quality education within a Christian framework. However, these institutions are not only for those interested in church vocations, but rather for students in many diverse areas.

In order for Baptist colleges and schools to continue their missions, strong contact must be maintained with area churches. The theme of this year's day is "In Partnership We Are: Preparing for Christian Living."

Card of Thanks

SEMINAR SET

Gulf Coast Business Services Corporation and the Private Industry Council, in conjunction with the Governor's Office of Handicapped Services, will sponsor a Handicapped Employment Awareness Seminar on Friday, Feb. 27.

The seminar will take place at the Royal d'Iberville Hotel in Biloxi, beginning with registration from 8-9 a.m., and concluding with a luncheon at 12 noon.

One of the highlights of the seminar will be Harold Russell as a guest speaker at the luncheon. Russell is chairman of the President's Committee on Employment of the Handicapped. Many will remember him as one of the co-stars in the 1946 Academy Award picture, "The Best Years of our Lives."

This seminar will be very informative, and, if you wish to attend, please contact John Bonner at 664-7924 in Gulfport, or the Chamber office at 467-2043.

MISSISSIPPI CHAMBER

Michele Leigh Reynolds has been chosen as the 1987 Miss Hancock County Chamber of Commerce, and will represent the Chamber at various functions throughout the year.

Reynolds, a senior at Our Lady Academy, is the 18-year-old daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Michael J. Reynolds of Bay St. Louis. She is a member of the Project Do Council, the Crescent Athletic Club, the Drama Club and the Princess Shoppe Teen Board. She has been an Alpha and Beta honor roll student, was named Who's Who Among American High School Students, placed first in the science fair, was the first runner-up in the Miss Mississippi Teen USA Pageant, a member of the St. Stanislaus Homecoming Court and a maid in the St. Patrick's Day parade.

We are proud to have Michele representing us this year, and know she will prove an asset to this organization.

TOURISM ACHIEVEMENT

"Lady," the steam locomotive that is the focal point of the Mississippi Railway and Transportation Museum at Port Bienville, has been awarded the 1986 Governor's Award for Tourism Achievement.

The award states that it is given "in recognition of outstanding support and contributions to the enhancement of travel and tourism in Mississippi."

We are very pleased that "Lady" received this award, and we believe she deserves it!

JERRY HLAAS

Jerry Hlaas, director of the National Space Technology Laboratories in Bay St. Louis, has received the President's Rank of Meritorious Executive for his management record, which spans more than 30 years of service to the federal government. The award, the highest that can be given to a civil service employee, is awarded to career federal employees in the Senior Executive Service whose performance has been exceptional for a period of years.

NEW MEMBERS

President Herbert Dubuison welcomes the following new members to the Chamber: Downtown Fay St. Louis Merchants Association - Ed Jurowski, president; Marvin Lacoste Repair Service, Inc. - Marvin Lacoste; Theo Industrial - Theodore (Ted) Kagalis; Dr. Roger D. Oge - individual; Diamondhead Country Club; Diamondhead Yacht Club; Diamondhead Property Owners Association - Robert A. Barnes.

PARADES

The following is a schedule of the upcoming Mardi Gras parades:

Krewe of Nereids - Sunday, Feb. 22 - 2 p.m.; Diamondhead Parade - Saturday, Feb. 23 - 1 p.m.; Krewe of Real People - Tuesday, March 3 - 11:30 a.m.; Krewe of Triton - Tuesday, March 3 - 2 p.m.

VOLUNTEERS NEEDED

The Chamber is seeking volunteers for the Membership and Retail Committees. If you are interested in serving on either of these committees, please contact the office at 467-2043.

Mississippi growers to host Convention

Sweet potato growers from throughout the nation will taste Mississippi hospitality as they gather here Feb. 8-10 for the 25 annual convention of the Sweet Potato Council of the United States, Inc.

About 400 members and guests are expected to attend the event, which will be at the Holiday Inn North, according to Benny Graves, secretary-treasurer of the Mississippi Sweet Potato Council.

Speakers will include Commissioner Jim Buck Ross of the Mississippi Department of Agriculture and Commerce; Sen. Thad Cochran; George Williams, executive vice president of Catfish Farmers of America; Dr. Louis Wise and Dr. Paul Thompson of Mississippi State University; and Pete Allen, president of Allen Canning Co. in Arkansas.

Also scheduled are business sessions and reports from each state on the highlights of the 1986 crop season and an outlook for 1987.

Convention entertainment includes a performance by Paul Ott, noted humorist, and Charlie Wicker's dance band. Others performing will be the Peterson Sisters and Ruby Lovette.

During the three-day event, participants will be able to visit the Mississippi Delta catfish producing area and tour a fish processing facility.

Foreign policy new course topic

Individuals interested in U.S. foreign policy may benefit from a spring semester course offered by the University of Southern Mississippi Division of Lifelong Learning.

"Great Decisions 1987" is a part of a community-based program to educate citizens in the field of foreign policy.

Topics that will be discussed by the group include: the constitution and foreign policy; defense and the federal deficit; Egypt and the United States; the Pacific Basin; South Africa; foreign investment in America; Pakistan and Afghanistan; and dealing with revolution.

The class, which costs $15, will meet from 7 - 9 p.m. on Thursdays from Feb. 19 to April 16 in Room 118 of the USM Nursing Building. The class will not meet during spring break.

For more information, call USM's Division of Lifelong Learning at (601) 266-4206 or write Southern Station Box 5056, Hattiesburg, Miss. 39406-5056.

I do not know whether it will be a big, great big, outstanding, or overwhelming football game Sunday afternoon when the 'stars' of Bay High and Hancock North Central tangle in a benefit for the March of Dimes.

Now the 'stars' will not be from this year, but from days gone by.

I have been informed that Ronnie Peterson will quarterback and coach the Tigers, while Irvin Favre will quarterback and coach the Hawks.

Kick-off for the 'star' attraction is scheduled for 2 p.m.

Rumors have been flowing about the county that local drug stores have had a rush on ointments.

A roster we have acquired lists besides the sheriff and coach such 'stars' as J.P. Compretta for the Tigers and Berlin Ladner for the Hawks, and the list go on.

An admission of 50 cents or any donation will be appreciated.

The game will be played at McCullough Field (former Tiger Stadium) in Bay St. Louis.

This will be a good time for football lovers to see the 'star' football players from the Hawks and Tigers once again show how they mastered the pigskin in days gone by.

Promoters are hoping to have the stadium packed for the game, as they would like to make a large contribution to the March of Dimes.

By the way, the 'stars' are scheduled to play touch football.

Cheerleaders are also expected to inspire their respective teams to victory.

We hope to see you Sunday afternoon at the big football game of the 'stars'.

On Friday, the Hancock County Board of Supervisors are scheduled to accept bids on the Hancock General Hospital building.

The hospital will be soon moving into new quarters on US-90 in Bay St. Louis.

There are those who feel the old hospital building should be kept by the county, while others feel it should be sold.

Arguments can be made for either side of the issue.

We feel if the facility is sold, the county should receive a good price for the old hospital building.

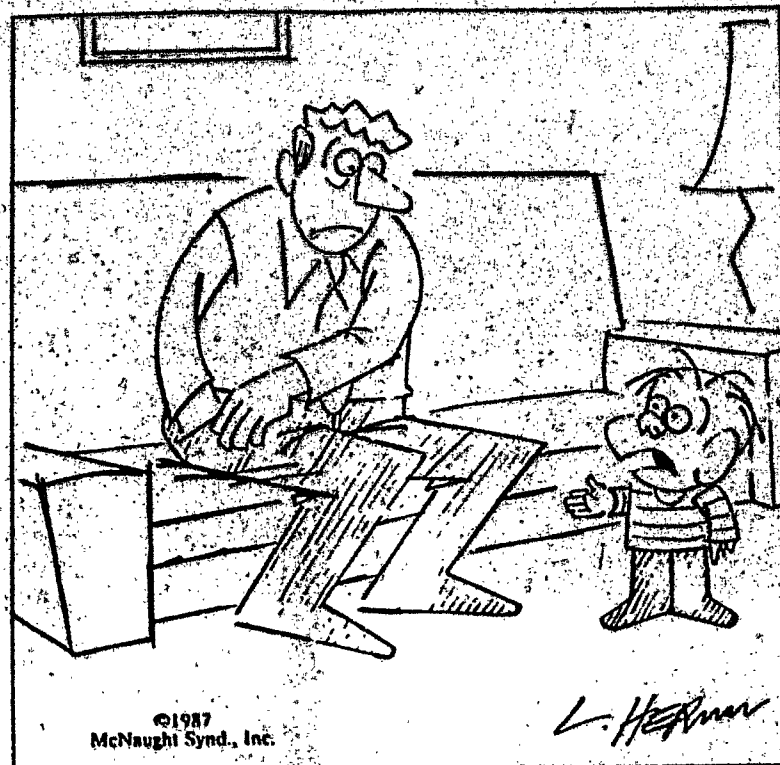

Many residents of the area have been keeping abreast of the developments of inventor Joe Newman of Lucedale in his bid to receive a patent for his energy machine.

We exchange copies of our newspapers with the George County Times in Lucedale and noted a large news coverage last week on Newman's use of his 'gyro-power' car recently.

Buddy Sellers, publisher of the George County Times, whom we have known many years and have worked together with as members of the Mississippi Press Association, feels Newman should receive a patent from the U.S. Patent Office.

We have heard of and read about some of the 'silly' things inventors have received patents on over the years and wonder why Newman's invention cannot receive a patent.

It is hoped the inventor will receive proper consideration from the U.S. Patent Office.

PTO president commends Bay school board for positive steps

The Sea Coast Echo
Bay St. Louis

Dear Sir,
The Bay St. Louis-Waveland School board at its regular meeting Feb. 9, went on record in favor of an all-elected school board and agreed unanimously to work toward such a goal.

This goal will not come easily, because it must be approved at the local, state and federal levels of government. However, it is one of the first steps in a long process.

The school board's decision to do this, coupled with recent efforts to project a long-range development and building program for the school district, are positive steps for the benefit of our school children and our community.

Their action should be commended and applauded for their courage and desire to improve our local school system. With the cooperation of the school administration, parents, teachers, and local elected officials these admirable goals can be reached and will be a rich investment in our community's greatest asset - our children.

Gulfside commemorates Black Heritage

Gulfside Assembly is a historic site of Methodism in America. It is 65 miles from New Orleans on a quiet stretch on the Gulf Coast of Mexico. It is a historic, religious, educational, cultural and recreation center.

In the early 1800's, Gulfside fulfilled the dream of having a black bishop (Bishop Robert E. Jones). Bishop Jones was also elected as a general superintendent of the Methodist Church.

His purpose was to seek ways and means of helping to raise the standards of leadership among blacks in the Methodist Church.

Gulfside still adheres to the purpose it was intended to be. In September 1947 a tidal wave struck the Assembly grounds severely damaging the property.

By the following Spring 1950 under the leadership of Bishop Brooks, Gulfside was restored. The Robert Jones Administration Building, Brooks Chapel, the Longmore Inn and Harry Hoosier Hall were erected. Tragedy struck again in 1969 when Hurricane Camille destroyed 26 buildings.

Bishop Brooks had the support of the local churches. In particular, the St. Rock U.M.C. which was destroyed in the 1947 storm. Bishop Brooks saw to it that it was rebuilt in 1950. Worship service is still held there in memory of its history just as Gulfside.

Gulfside was the only place in the United States where blacks had unlimited access to the sea for recreational purposes. It was the only place in most of the southern area where blacks and whites could share ideas and socialize without disturbances.

Many feel Gulfside is not needed. It has been proven over and over again that it is needed now more than ever.

Take a look at our youth today. The jail is so overcrowded until they are sleeping on the floor. Gulfside is equipped with activities that may defer youth from partaking of drugs, alcohol and bad company.

A dream occurred in the 1920's that should long be remembered. We must do everything in our power to support and keep Gulfside alive. For it was built upon love. Wide as the world is thy command. Vast as eternity thy love, firm as a rock - thy truth must stand when rolling years shall cease to move again.

Dear Editor:
Valentine's Day is Saturday, Feb. 14. And, as you may know, February is American Heart Month. To observe the occasion, the Heart Association is making a special attempt to offer our lifesaving information to the public.

Almost half of all Mississippians die from cardiovascular disease. Chances are, many of your readers will be affected by heart attack or stroke this year.

We can provide free brochures which can help reduce the chances of experiencing a heart attack or stroke. These risk factors are smoking, high blood pressure and a diet high in cholesterol.

Please encourage your readers to make this the year they give their loved ones a true gift from the heart. Call our toll-free number 800-451-3744, or write today for information which could add years of health and happiness.

Legislative Update

By Ellen Ann Fentress

A feud between House members from north and south Mississippi over highway funding and contained muscle flexing by House rebels ended a deadline week at the Mississippi Legislature.

Eyes on Mississippi

By Bill Minor

A spunky little woman legislator named Elizabeth "Woolie" Tate, of Poycaine, took one of the new reform rules adopted by the Mississippi House and whipped the Old Guard last week.

Since 1968, the House has had a rule providing that any pending bill not acted on by a committee after 20 legislative days may be withdrawn from the committee by a majority vote of the entire House and immediately acted upon or sent to another committee.

It was a rule Gov. J.P. Coleman, knowing the Old Guard system of bottling up bills in committee, had insisted on when he became governor. In return for taking no part in the historic 1968 speakers race between Speaker Walter Sillers and William Winter.

But if memory serves, no bill had ever been successfully withdrawn until last week when Rep. Tate did it on a bill which many believe will help rural Mississippians get better fire insurance rates.

The bill had been left without action in the House Insurance committee and was about to die last Thursday night under the legislative deadline for committees to report on pending bills.

Actually, the withdrawal rule had been nullified back when the Legislature began limited annual sessions in 1970 and put in a deadline schedule for processing legislation. The deadline for committees to act on general bills came before the 20 legislative days had passed. (Only days on which the Legislature actually meets are considered legislative days.)

As a consequence, there has technically been no way to withdraw a bill for years, but the House leadership did nothing to change the rule.

That was one of the seven rules that the House reformers lacked in their package of changes they put through over the objection of House Speaker Buddie Newman and his allies. The new rule says any bill not acted on by the 20th calendar day of the session can be withdrawn.

Tate had filed her withdrawal motion on Wednesday, the 20th calendar day, and let it lie over 24 hours before calling it up. That could have persuaded Rep. Teddie Millette of Pascagoula, the insurance committee chairman, to call a meeting and act on the bill, but he didn't.

There isn't even a place in the order of business of the House designated for acting on withdrawal motions, indicating how little regard House leaders have had for the procedure to pry bills loose from the powerful House committee system.

Tate had been advised that a motion is highly privileged and consequently could be called up at any time. But when she made her move to call it up on Thursday, she was told by Speaker Newman, on the advice of parliamentarian J. A. Bud Thigpen, that it would take a two-thirds vote to reverse the order of business.

Normally a two-thirds vote is very hard to get, particularly on a controversial matter, such as the rural fire insurance measure. But Tate, with practically all the rules reform forces backing her, got it, 71-34. After that, the simple majority vote to actually withdraw the bill was a piece of cake.

Under the withdrawal rule, Tate could have immediately had the bill acted on by the whole house sitting as a committee. Instead, she gave the committee system one more shot to act, but she picked Rep. Ralph Doxey's Judiciary B committee to do it.

Moments after the House adjourned, Doxey called his committee to consider the bill (Thursday being the deadline day), and Tate was given the chance to discuss the measure which she hadn't been given by Millette. Rep. Charles Williams of Senatobia, a key foe of Tate's bill, also was heard, and then the committee, by a show of hands, approved the measure overwhelmingly.

Even then, Tate's bill faced tough odds in getting passed in this deadline week with 200 bills ahead of it.

Her measure, which she drafted after gathering information all over the state on the rural fire insurance crisis, would require the State Rating Bureau to adopt current standards of the National Insurance Services Office (ISO) in rating rural fire departments.

She contends that the state is using outdated standards that do not take into account present capability of rural fire departments to suppress fires using water supplies from "fire ponds" built according to specifications of the Soil Conservation Service.

"All homeowners outside of cities are now automatically rated in class 10 which doubles and sometimes triples their fire insurance rates," she said.

Her bill, she said, would give many rural areas in organized fire districts a chance to upgrade their ratings and lower insurance costs. "This has been the experience in 45 other states, and I don't see why we let the status quo prevail," Tate declared.

With a nickname like "Woolie" most of her colleagues never took her seriously. What they found out last week in this bantam-sized lady is a buzz-saw who never quits.

There's no doubt being a woman in the Mississippi House is a handicap, unless you play the role of a get-along, go-along sweet Southern Belle type.

Woolie is just not going to play that role. Nor is she going to be underestimated any longer.

Weekly Summary

from

Mississippi House of Representatives

By Andrew Reese

House Information Officer

Floor action was expected to take priority this week in the Mississippi House of Representatives, as lawmakers, moving into the second month of the 1987 session, tackled a mountainous stack of bills.

More than 200 bills and resolutions were approved last week by House committees and sent to the bulging calendar for consideration by the full House. The deadline for floor action on most of these measures is Thursday, Feb. 12.

Among the numerous bills awaiting floor action at the end of the past week were several measures aimed at helping cope with rural fire insurance problems, a series of proposed amendments to the State Constitution, a compulsory auto liability insurance proposal, a plan to reapportion the state's three Supreme Court districts, and a proposed residential landlord-tenant act.

A number of other bills failed to survive last week's deadline for committee action on general bills and constitutional amendments. Several motions were filed under a new House rule to withdraw bills from committees if committees took no action on the measures.

In some instances, bills failed to clear House or Senate committees but remained viable since similar bills were pending in the other chamber.

Several controversial proposals were approved by House committees and were awaiting floor action at the close of the past week, including proposed constitutional amendments dealing with a state lottery and a reorganization of the state's system of higher education.

A bill calling for a referendum on a constitutional convention was defeated in committee but reached the House calendar on a minority report.

While most of last week's attention was on committee work, several important measures won House approval and were sent along to the Senate.

The House approved some revisions in a student assessment testing program established under the 1982 Education Reform Act. Basically, the bill would give education officials more flexibility in deciding the grades in which to administer the tests. At present, the law specifies the tests shall be given in grades 3, 5, 8 and 11.

Recommended by the state Department of Education, the bill still would require students to pass a literacy test to get their diploma. It would allow students to receive a Certificate of Attendance, instead of a diploma, if they fail the literacy test but meet other graduation requirements.

Additional associations support Mississippi for Tort Reform

Three additional business associations have joined a list of 33 statewide business organizations supporting legislation to revise the state's tort system.

The 36 organizations, representing most of the major business, industrial, and professional groups in Mississippi, are calling on the Legislature to revise tort system laws and put an end to what the business group believes is a "litigation-prone environment" in which business is being forced to operate in the state.

The Mississippi Bankers Association, the Mississippi Railroad Association, and the Mississippi Eye, Ear, Nose and Throat Association are the latest to join the growing list of business groups lining up in support of tort reform.

Meanwhile, Bob Pittman, president of the Mississippi Economic Council, one of the business organizations supporting tort reform, said, "The Legislature must recognize that the issue of tort reform is an economic development issue. Mississippi cannot expect to advance economically if we allow the tort reform system to continue to operate as it does today."

The 36 business associations are calling for reforms in the system which include restrictions on the doctrine of joint and several liability, limitations on awards of punitive and other noneconomic damages in liability lawsuits, a reduction in the statute of limitations affecting liability lawsuits, penalties for filing of frivolous lawsuits, and tough requirements for exemption from jury duty.

Almost half the businesses in Mississippi have made decisions adversely affecting their own economic growth, and affecting Mississippi's economic expansion, because of the threat of liability lawsuits, Pittman said.

We must revise the system if we are to compete in the arena of economic development and if we are to encourage existing business to expand.

A recent survey of Mississippi businesses, Pittman added, indicates that business owners and operators are being forced to reject investment opportunities, pass up the creation of new products, delay expansion of in-state operations, and even reduce employees because of the liability risks involved.

The present tort system also affects external development, Pittman said, pointing out that 39 other states have already enacted tort reform legislation.

"Mississippi cannot compete with these other states in the economic development arena unless we correct problems within our tort system," he said.

The 36 organizations supporting tort reform legislation include the following:

Associated Builders & Contractors, Associated General Contractors, Electric Power Associations of Mississippi, Independent Nursing Home Association, and Mid-Continent Oil & Gas Association.

And also, all of Mississippi, the Alarm Association, Asphalt Association, Automobile Dealers Association, Bankers Association, Cable Association, Concrete Industries Association, and Consulting Engineers Association.

Also, Contractors Council, Dental Association, Economic Council, Eye, Ear, Nose & Throat Association, Farm Bureau Federation, Forestry Association, Funeral Directors Association, Health Care Association, Home Builders Association and Hospital Association.

And, League of Savings Institutions, Manufacturers Association, Municipal Association, Optometric Association, Petroleum Council, Petroleum Marketers Association, Poultry Association, Propane Association, Railroad Association, Realtors Association, Road Builders Association, State Medical Association, Subcontractors Association and Trucking Association.

representatives opposed the highway program, which would four-lane roads in other parts of the state through about a 3.5 cent per gallon net increase in fuel taxes and other revenue sources.

At that time, Coast representatives were criticized for sectionalism and threatened that their opposition to building highways in other parts of the state could cost them support for projects that aid the Coast, such as the Navy port and state funds for the State Port at Gulfport.

Northeastern representatives tried to get their support by tying the highway funds to the state support for a causeway needed before the Navy could locate a port in Pascagoula. The move to tie the two bills failed.

Also in the House last week, rebels look advantage of new House procedural rules enacted in a January uprising to democratize House procedures, including a new timetable to allow bills to be pulled out of hostile committees before becoming deadline casualties.

A bill to adopt national fire rating standards for rural fire protection was yanked from the House Insurance Committee. Also pulled from their committees were two bills to provide for limits on lawsuits.

Receiving another week's reprieve was a proposal to hold a November referendum on writing a new state constitution. The Senate passed bill was rejected by the House Constitution Committee 10-2 on Wednesday, but two committee supporters of a referendum filed a minority report that could place the proposal before the full House for a vote this week.

Also coming from the House Constitution Committee were proposals to hold a statewide vote on reducing Mississippi's eight universities to three and a statewide vote on establishing a state supported lottery to help pay for the $1.5 billion highway plan.

Two other gambling measures—to pave the way for jai alai in Harrison County and horse racing tracks in Jackson and Tunica counties—won approval last week.

The jai alai bill would allow a county referendum on whether to let private investors build a $20 million jai alai facility with pari-mutuel betting. The measure passed the Senate Finance Committee 8-4.

The House is set to take a vote on horse racing, following its Ways and Means Committee's approval of legislation to pave the way for votes in Jackson and Tunica counties to consider opening the counties to tracks with pari-mutuel betting.

House Bill 1113, Amendment 1, Amendment No. 1 would have tied a $12 million state bond issue to construct a causeway to a proposed U.S. Navy Home Port in Jackson County (on the Coast) to passage of a $1.5 billion highway program.

This was proposed because some Northeast House members were disgruntled because Coast representatives voted against the highway bill. It failed by a vote of 39-73.

Phillips, Nay; Holston, Nay. House Bill 101, Amendment 2, House members rejected 25-86 a move to divest the Mississippi Public Employees Retirement System of interest in businesses that have holdings in South Africa.

Phillips, Nay; Holston, Nay. House Bill 1010, (Final Passage) This bill made state employees eligible for retirement after 25 years of service rather than 30. Some penalties would be involved. It also increases benefits for all state employees by 5 percent. It passed 111-5.

Phillips, Yea; Holston, Yea. The Senate passed SB2373 unanimously. It provides as a part of the pre-sentencing procedure for a statement on the impact of the crime on the victim before final sentencing.

Also passed 49-1 was SB2374. It provides that crime victims may be present and seated at the prosecution table during trials. Hob Bryan was the lone Nay vote.

Senate Bill 2324 The Senate approved 33-18 a measure that requires municipalities that own utilities to go through the Public Service Commission before being able to claim eminent domain.

Gene Taylor, Nay; Martin Smith, Yea.

$38 million Jackson VA clinic in budget

WASHINGTON—Mississippi Congressmen G.V. "Sonny" Montgomery and Wayne Dowdy announced today that the Reagan Administration has included in its proposed FY '88 budget for the Veterans Administration a $38 million clinical addition project for the Jackson VA Medical Center.

Montgomery, who chairs the House Veterans' Affairs Committee, and Dowdy, a senior member of the Committee, said they are pleased that the Administration has given the project such a high priority. The proposal is one of only two clinical improvement projects nationwide to be included in the Administration's proposed VA budget.

The project calls for a five-level clinical addition for inpatient/outpatient psychiatry, psychology, mental hygiene and surgical services:

- Basement level — operating rooms, outpatient surgery and recovery
- First floor — offices, main lobby, outpatient psychiatry
- Second level — neurological bed section and support
- Third level — inpatient psychiatry
- Fourth level — intensive care and cardiac care units, medical diagnostic clinics for cardiology and respiratory diseases

Space vacated by services shifted to the new facility would be renovated for expansion of supply, pharmacy, radiology and other outpatient services.

The number of Mississippi veterans age 65 and older will increase from today's total of 48,000 to 80,000 by the turn of the century. Montgomery said that additional medical resources "are an absolute necessity if we are to honor our commitment to provide quality health care to all eligible veterans."

Lamar Warnock, Director of the Jackson VA Medical Center, said the facility will provide adequate space to meet the anticipated workload through the year 2000.

requirements. Along with other provisions, an amendment was inserted to ensure that students are given a literacy test prior to the 9th grade.

A proposal to reorganize the Mississippi Memorial Stadium Commission also was approved by the House last week. Backers said the bill was part of efforts to resolve problems at the 62,500-seat stadium and make sure it is used to the fullest extent possible.

The restructured commission would consist of five members appointed by the governor with the initial appointments for staggered terms. There would be one member from each Supreme Court District, one from the state at large, and one from Hinds County where the stadium is located. Other provisions include a requirement that concession sales at the stadium be audited.

An amendment was approved to permit Jackson State University to receive one-half of the profits from concession sales and the stadium on games when JSU is the home team.

Other bills approved recently by the House would allow grain dealers and grain warehousemen to provide irrevocable letters of credit, in lieu of surety bond, in seeking a license; direct the Board of Education to establish screening program for students with abnormal spinal curvature; designate the Tennessee-Tombigbee Waterway Bridge in Hattiesburg County in honor of the late Congressman John Rankin; permit Boards of Supervisors in counties with two judicial districts to operate only one jail in the county; clarify labeling requirements for light wine; and revise a state law dealing with oil field unitization by reducing the required approval rate of royalty and working interest owners to 75 percent for compulsory fieldwide unitization.

A number of Bills involving the state's correctional system were approved, including a measure to require that offenders who are 21 and younger are confined separately from older inmates.

In addition, the House voted to renege the state's Community Service Restitution Act for non-violent first offenders, and to expand a joint state-county work program for inmates authorized in 1983 on a limited basis.

I do not know whether it will be a big, great big, outstanding, or overwhelming football game Sunday afternoon when the 'stars' of Bay High and Hancock North Central tangle in a benefit for the March of Dimes.

Now the 'stars' will not be from this year, but from days gone by.

I have been informed that Ronnie Peterson will quarterback and coach the Tigers, while Irvin Favre will quarterback and coach the Hawks.

Kick-off for the 'star' attraction is scheduled for 2 p.m.

Rumors have been flowing about the county that local drug stores have had a rush on ointments.

A roster we have acquired lists besides the sheriff and coach such 'stars' as J.P. Compretta for the Tigers and Berlin Ladner for the Hawks, and the list go on.

An admission of 50 cents or any donation will be appreciated.

The game will be played at McCullough Field (former Tiger Stadium) in Bay St. Louis.

This will be a good time for football lovers to see the 'star' football players from the Hawks and Tigers once again show how they mastered the pigskin in days gone by.

Promoters are hoping to have the stadium packed for the game, as they would like to make a large contribution to the March of Dimes.

By the way, the 'stars' are scheduled to play touch football.

Cheerleaders are also expected to inspire their respective teams to victory.

We hope to see you Sunday afternoon at the big football game of the 'stars'.

On Friday, the Hancock County Board of Supervisors are scheduled to accept bids on the Hancock General Hospital building.

The hospital will be soon moving into new quarters on US-90 in Bay St. Louis.

There are those who feel the old hospital building should be kept by the county, while others feel it should be sold.

Arguments can be made for either side of the issue.

We feel if the facility is sold, the county should receive a good price for the old hospital building.

Many residents of the area have been keeping abreast of the developments of inventor Joe Newman of Lucedale in his bid to receive a patent for his energy machine.

We exchange copies of our newspapers with the George County Times in Lucedale and noted a large news coverage last week on Newman's use of his 'gyro-power' car recently.

Buddy Sellers, publisher of the George County Times, whom we have know many years and have worked together with as members of the Mississippi Press Association, feels Newman should receive a patent from the U.S. Patent Office.

We have heard of and read about some of the 'silly' things inventors have received patents on over the years and wonder why Newman's invention cannot receive a patent.

It is hoped the inventor will receive proper consideration from the U.S. Patent Office.

PTO president commends Bay school board for positive steps

The Sea Coast Echo
Bay St. Louis

Dear Sir,

The Bay St. Louis-Waveland School board at its regular meeting Feb. 9, went on record in favor of an all-elected school board and agreed unanimously to work toward such a goal.

This goal will not come easily, because it must be approved at the local, state and federal levels of government. However, it is one of the first steps in a long process.

The school board's decision to do this, coupled with recent efforts to project a long-range development and building program for the school district, are positive steps for the benefit of our school children and our community.

Their action should be commended and applauded for their courage and desire to improve our local school system. With the cooperation of the school administration, parents, teachers, and local elected officials these admirable goals can be reached and will be a rich investment in our community's greatest asset - our children.

Gulfside commemorates Black Heritage

Gulfside Assembly is a historic site of Methodism in America. It is 65 miles from New Orleans on a quiet stretch on the Gulf Coast of Mexico. It is a historic, religious, educational, cultural and recreation center.

In the early 1920's, Gulfside fulfilled the dream of having a black bishop (Bishop Robert E. Jones). Bishop Jones was also elected as a general superintendent of the Methodist Church.

His purpose was to seek ways and means of helping to raise the standards of leadership among blacks in the Methodist Church.

Gulfside still adheres to the purpose it was intended to be. In September 1947 a tidal wave struck the Assembly grounds severely damaging the property.

By the following Spring 1950 under the leadership of Bishop Brooks, Gulfside was restored. The Robert Jones Administration Building, Brooks Chapel, the Longmore Inn and Harry Hoosier Hall were erected. Tragedy struck again in 1969 when Hurricane Camille destroyed 26 buildings.

Bishop Brooks had the support of the local churches. In particular, the St. Rock U.M.C. which was destroyed in the 1947 storm. Bishop Brooks saw to it that it was rebuilt in 1950. Worship service is still held there in memory of its history just as Gulfside.

Gulfside was the only place in the United States where blacks had unlimited access to the seas for recreational purposes. It was the only place in most of the southern area where blacks and whites could share ideas and socialize without disturbances.

Many feel Gulfside is not needed. It has been proven over and over again that it is needed now more than ever.

Take a look at our youth today. The jail is so overcrowded until they are sleeping on the floor. Gulfside is equipped with activities that may deter youth from partaking of drugs, alcohol and bad company.

A dream occurred in the 1920's that should long be remembered. We must do everything in our power to support and keep Gulfside alive. For it was built upon love. Wide as the world is thy command. Vast as eternity they love, firm as a rock - thy truth must stand when rolling years shall cease to move again.

Legislative Update

By Ellen Ann Fentress

A feud between House members from north and south Mississippi over highway funding and continued muscle flexing by House rebels ended a deadline week at the Mississippi Legislature.

Last week marked the deadline for committee consideration of general bills, and committee sessions ended action on the House and Senate floor until the Thursday deadline passed.

Another major deadline comes this Thursday, the last day for floor action on general bills.

A north-south Mississippi split over a $1.5 billion statewide highway improvement program brewed on in the House last week. Northeastern Mississippi representatives attempted to force Coast support for the highway plan by proposing to tie funds for a project near to the Coast's heart to the highway plan's passage.

Two weeks ago, most Coast bills were pending in the other

Eyes on Mississippi

By Bill Minor

A spunky little woman legislator named Elizabeth "Wootie" Tate, of Piquette, took one of the new reform rules adopted by the Mississippi House and whipped the Old Guard last week.

Since 1965, the House has had a rule providing that any pending bill not acted on by a committee after 20 legislative days may be withdrawn from the committee by a majority vote of the entire House and immediately acted upon or sent to another committee.

It was a rule Gov. J.P. Coleman, knowing the Old Guard system of bottling up bills in committee, had insisted on when he became governor, in return for taking no part in the historic 1966 speakers race between Speaker Walter Sillers and William Winter.

But if memory serves, no bill had ever been successfully withdrawn until last week when Rep. Tate did it on a bill which many believe will help rural Mississippians get better fire insurance rates.

The bill had been left without action in the House Insurance committee and was about to die last Thursday night under the legislative deadline for committees to report on pending bills.

Actually, the withdrawal rule had been nullified back when the Legislature began limited annual sessions in 1970 and put in a deadline schedule for processing legislation. The deadline for committees to act on general bills came before the 20 legislative days had passed. (Only days on which the Legislature actually meets are considered legislative days.)

As a consequence, there has technically been no way to withdraw a bill for years, but the House leadership did nothing to change the rule.

That was one of the seven rules that the House reformers tackled in their package of changes they put through over the objection of House Speaker Buddie Newman and his allies. The new rule says any bill not acted on by the 29th calendar day of the session can be withdrawn.

Tate had filed her withdrawal motion on Wednesday, the 29th calendar day, and let it lie over 24 hours before calling it up. That could have persuaded Rep. Teddy Millette, of Pascagoula, the insurance committee chairman, to call a meeting and act on the bill, but he didn't.

There isn't even a place in the order of business of the House designated for acting on withdrawal motions, indicating how little regard House leaders have had for the procedure to pry bills loose from the powerful House committee system.

Tate had been advised that a motion is highly privileged and consequently could be called up at any time. But when she made her move to call it up on Thursday, she was told by Speaker Newman, on the advice of parliamentarian J. A. Bud Thigpen, that it would take a two-thirds vote to reverse the order of business.

Normally a two-thirds vote is very hard to get, particularly on a controversial matter, such as the rural fire insurance measure. But Tate, with practically all the rules reform forces backing her, got it, 71-34. After that, the simple majority vote to actually withdraw the bill was a piece of cake.

Under the withdrawal rule, Tate could have immediately had the bill acted on by the whole house sitting as a committee. Instead, she gave the committee system one more shot to act, but she picked Rep. Ralph Dorey's Judiciary B committee to do it.

Moments after the House adjourned, Dorey called his committee to consider the bill (Thursday being the deadline day), and Tate was given the chance to discuss the measure which she hadn't been given by Millette. Rep. Charles Williams of Senatobia, a key foe of Tate's bill, also was heard, and then the committee, by a show of hands, approved the measure overwhelmingly.

Even then, Tate's bill faced tough odds in getting passed in this deadline week with 200 bills ahead of it.

Her measure, which she drafted after gathering information all over the state on the rural fire insurance crisis, would require the State Rating Bureau to adopt current standards of the national Insurance Services Office (ISO) in rating rural fire departments.

She contends that the state is using outdated standards that do not take into account present capability of rural fire departments to suppress fires using water supplies from "fire ponds" built according to specifications of the Soil Conservation Service.

"All homeowners outside of cities are now automatically rated in class 10 which doubles and sometimes triples their fire insurance rates," she said.

Her bill, she said, would give many rural areas in organized fire districts a chance to upgrade their ratings and lower insurance costs. "This has been the experience in 45 other states, and I don't see why we let the status quo prevail," Tate declared.

With a nickname like "Wootie" most of her colleagues never took her seriously. What they found out last week is this bantam-sized lady is a buzz-saw who never quits.

There's no doubt being a woman in the Mississippi House is a handicap, unless you play the role of a get-along, go-along sweet Southern Belle type.

Wootie is just not going to play that role. Nor is she going to be underestimated any longer.

Housekeeping

Weekly Summary from Mississippi House of Representatives

By Andrew Reese
House Information Officer

Floor action was expected to take priority this week in the Mississippi House of Representatives as lawmakers, moving into the second month of the 1987 session, tackled a mountainous stack of bills.

More than 200 bills and resolutions were approved last week by House committees and sent to the bulging calendar for consideration by the full House. The deadline for floor action on most of these measures is Thursday, Feb. 12.

Among the numerous bills awaiting floor action at the end of the past week were several measures aimed at helping cope with rural fire insurance problems, a series of proposed amendments to the State Constitution, a compulsory auto liability insurance proposal, a plan to reappoint the state's three Supreme Court districts, and a proposed residential landlord-tenant act.

A number of other bills failed to survive last week's deadline for committee action on general bills and constitutional amendments. Several motions were filed under a new House rule to withdraw bills from committees if committees took no action on the measures.

In some instances, bills failed to clear House or Senate committees but remained viable since similar bills were pending in the other chamber.

Several controversial proposals were approved by House committees and were awaiting floor action at the close of the past week, including proposed constitutional amendments dealing with a state lottery and a reorganization of the state's system of higher education.

A bill calling for a referendum on a constitutional convention was defeated in committee but reached the House calendar on a minority report.

While most of last week's attention was on committee work, several important measures won House approval and were sent along to the Senate.

The House approved some revisions in a student assessment testing program established under the 1982 Education Reform Act. Basically, the bill would give education officials more flexibility in deciding the grades in which to administer the tests. At present, the law specifies the tests shall be given in grades 3, 5, 8 and 11.

Recommended by the state Department of Education, the bill still would require students to pass a literacy test to get their diploma.

It would allow students to receive a Certificate of Attendance, instead of a diploma, if they fail the literacy test but meet other graduation requirements.

Additional associations support Mississippi for Tort Reform

Three additional business associations have joined a list of 33 statewide business organizations supporting legislation to revise the state's tort system.

The 36 organizations, representing most of the major business, industrial, and professional groups in Mississippi, are calling on the Legislature to revise tort system laws and put an end to what the business group believes is a "litigation-prone environment" in which business is being forced to operate in the state.

The Mississippi Bankers Association, the Mississippi Railroad Association, and the Mississippi Eye, Ear, Nose and Throat Association are the latest to join the growing list of business groups lining up in support of tort reform.

Meanwhile, Bob Pittman, president of the Mississippi Economic Council, one of the business organizations supporting tort reform, said, "The Legislature must recognize that the issue of tort reform is an economic development issue. Mississippi cannot expect to advance economically if we allow the tort reform system to continue to operate as it does today."

The 36 business associations are calling for reforms in the system which include restrictions on the doctrine of joint and several liability, limitations on awards of punitive and other noneconomic damages in liability lawsuits, a reduction in the statute of limitations affecting liability lawsuits, penalties for filing of frivolous lawsuits, and tough requirements for exemption from jury duty.

Almost half the businesses in Mississippi have made decisions adversely affecting their own economic growth, and affecting Mississippi's economic expansion, because of the threat of liability lawsuits, Pittman said.

We must revise the system if we are to compete in the arena of economic development and if we are to encourage existing business to expand.

A recent survey of Mississippi businesses, Pittman added, indicates that business owners and operators are being forced to reject investment opportunities, pass up the creation of new products, delay expansion of in-state operations, and even reduce employees because of the liability risks involved.

The present tort system also affects external development, Pittman said, pointing out that 39 other states have already enacted tort reform legislation.

"Mississippi cannot compete with these other states in the economic development arena unless we correct problems within our tort system," he said.

representatives opposed the highway program, which would four-lane roads in other parts of the state through about a 3.5 cent per gallon net increase in fuel taxes and other revenue sources.

At that time, Coast representatives were criticized for sectionalism and threatened that their opposition to building highways in other parts of the state could cost them support for projects that aid the Coast, such as the Navy port and state funds for the State Port at Gulfport.

Northeastern representatives tried to get their support by tying the highway funds to the state support for a causeway needed before the Navy could locate a port in Pascagoula. The move to tie the two bills failed.

Also in the House last week, rebels took advantage of new House procedural rules enacted in a January uprising to democratize House procedures, including a new timetable to allow bills to be pulled out of hostile committees before becoming deadline casualties.

A bill to adopt national fire rating standards for rural fire protection was yanked from the House Insurance Committee. Also pulled from their committees were two bills to provide for limits on lawsuits.

Receiving another week's reprieve was a proposal to hold a November referendum on writing a new state constitution. The Senate passed bill was rejected by the House Constitution Committee 10-2 on Wednesday, but two committee supporters of a referendum filed a minority report that could place the proposal before the full House for a vote this week.

Also coming from the House Constitution Committee were proposals to hold a statewide vote on reducing Mississippi's eight universities to three and a statewide vote on establishing a state supported lottery to help pay for the $1.5 billion highway plan.

Two other gambling measures—to pave the way for jai alai in Harrison County and horse racing tracks in Jackson and Tunica counties—won approval last week.

The jai alai bill would allow a county referendum on whether to let private investors build a $20 million jai alai facility with pari-mutuel betting. The measure passed the Senate Finance Committee 8-6.

The House is set to take a vote on horse racing, following its Ways and Means Committee's approval of legislation to pave the way for votes in Jackson and Tunica counties to consider opening the counties to tracks with pari-mutuel betting.

House Bill 1113, Amendment 1 Amendment No. 1 would have tied a $12 million state bond issue to construct a causeway to a proposed U.S. Navy Home Port in Jackson County (on the Coast) to passage of a $1.5 billion highway program.

This was proposed because some Northeast House members were disgruntled because Coast representatives voted against the highway bill. It failed by a vote of 39-73.

Phillips, Nay; Holston, Nay.

House Bill 101, Amendment 2 House members rejected 25-66 a move to divest the Mississippi Public Employees Retirement System of interest in businesses that have holdings in South Africa.

Phillips, Nay; Holston, Nay.

House Bill 1010, (Final Passage) This bill made state employees eligible for retirement after 25 years of service rather than 30. Some penalties would be involved. It also increases benefits for all state retirees by 5 percent. It passed 111-5.

Phillips, Yes; Holston, Yes.

The Senate passed SB2373 unanimously. It provides as a part of the pre-sentencing procedure for a statement on the impact of the crime on the victim before final sentencing.

Also passed 49-1 was SB2374. It provides that crime victims may be present and seated at the prosecution table during trials. Hob Bryan was the lone Nay vote.

Senate Bill 2324 The Senate approved 33-18 a measure that requires municipalities that own utilities to go through the Public Service Commission before being able to claim eminent domain.

Gene Taylor, Nay; Martin Smith, Yea.

Space vacated by services shifted to the new facility would be renovated for expansion of supply, pharmacy, radiology and other outpatient services.

The number of Mississippi veterans age 65 and older will increase from today's total of 48,000 to 80,000 by the turn of the century. Montgomery said that additional medical resources "are an absolute necessity if we are to honor our commitment to provide quality health care to all eligible veterans."

Lamar Warnock, Director of the Jackson VA Medical Center, said the facility will provide adequate space to meet the anticipated workload through the year 2000.

$38 million Jackson VA clinic in budget

WASHINGTON—Mississippi Congressmen G.V. "Sonny" Montgomery and Wayne Dowdy announced today that the Reagan Administration has included in its proposed FY '88 budget for the Veterans Administration a $38 million clinical addition project for the Jackson VA Medical Center.

Montgomery, who chairs the House Veterans Affairs Committee, and Dowdy, a senior member of the Committee, said they are pleased that the Administration has given the project such a high priority. The proposal is one of only two clinical improvement projects nationwide to be included in the Administration's proposed VA budget.

The project calls for a five-level clinical addition for inpatient/outpatient psychiatry, psychology, mental hygiene and surgical services:

- Basement level — operating rooms, outpatient surgery and recovery
- First floor — offices, main lobby, outpatient psychiatry
- Second level — neurological bed section and support
- Third level — inpatient psychiatry
- Fourth level — intensive care and cardiac care units, medical diagnostic clinics for cardiology and respiratory diseases

Kick-off for the 'star' attraction is scheduled for 2 p.m.

Rumors have been flowing about the county that local drug stores have had a rush on ointments.

A roster we have acquired lists besides the sheriff and coach such 'stars' as J.P. Compretta for the Tigers and Berlin Ladner for the Hawks, and the list go on.

An admission of 50 cents or any donation will be appreciated.

The game will be played at McCullough Field (former Tiger Stadium) in Bay St. Louis.

This will be a good time for football lovers to see the 'star' football players from the Hawks and Tigers once again show how they mastered the pigskin in days gone by.

Promoters are hoping to have the stadium packed for the game, as they would like to make a large contribution to the March of Dimes.

By the way, the 'stars' are scheduled to play touch football.

Cheerleaders are also expected to inspire their respective teams to victory.

We hope to see you Sunday afternoon at the big football game of the 'stars'.

On Friday, the Hancock County Board of Supervisors are scheduled to accept bids on the Hancock General Hospital building.

The hospital will be soon moving into new quarters on US-90 in Bay St. Louis.

There are those who feel the old hospital building should be kept by the county, while others feel it should be sold.

Arguments can be made for either side of the issue.

We feel if the facility is sold, the county should receive a good price for the old hospital building.

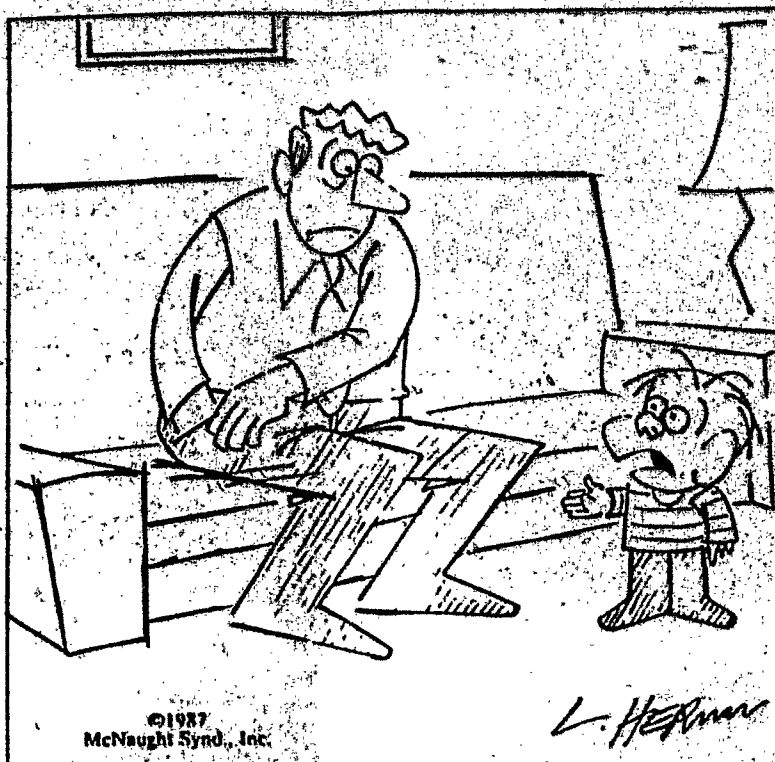

Many residents of the area have been keeping abreast of the developments of inventor Joe Newman of Lucedale in his bid to receive a patent for his energy machine.

We exchange copies of our newspapers with the George County Times in Lucedale and noted a large news coverage last week on Newman's use of his 'gyro-power' car recently.

Buddy Sellers, publisher of the George County Times, whom we have known many years and have worked together with as members of the Mississippi Press Association, feels Newman should receive a patent from the U.S. Patent Office.

We have heard of and read about some of the 'silly' things inventors have received patents on over the years and wonder why Newman's invention cannot receive a patent.

It is hoped the inventor will receive proper consideration from the U.S. Patent Office.

PTO president commends Bay school board for positive steps

The Sea Coast Echo
Bay St. Louis

Dear Sir,

The Bay St. Louis-Waveland School board at its regular meeting Feb. 9, went on record in favor of an all-elected school board and agreed unanimously to work toward such a goal.

This goal will not come easily, because it must be approved at the local, state and federal levels of government. However, it is one of the first steps in a long process.

The school board's decision to do this, coupled with recent efforts to project a long-range development and building program for the school district, are positive steps for the benefit of our school children and our community.

Their action should be commended and applauded for their courage and desire to improve our local school system. With the cooperation of the school administration, parents, teachers, and local elected officials these admirable goals can be reached and will be a rich investment in our community's greatest asset - our children.

Gulfside commemorates Black Heritage

Gulfside Assembly is a historic site of Methodism in America. It is 65 miles from New Orleans on a quiet stretch on the Gulf Coast of Mexico. It is a historic, religious, educational, cultural and recreation center.

In the early 1920's, Gulfside fulfilled the dream of having a black bishop (Bishop Robert E. Jones). Bishop Jones was also elected as a general superintendent of the Methodist Church.

His purpose was to seek ways and means of helping to raise the standards of leadership among blacks in the Methodist Church.

Gulfside still adheres to the purpose it was intended to be. In September 1947 a tidal wave struck the Assembly grounds severely damaging the property.

By the following Spring 1950 under the leadership of Bishop Brooks, Gulfside was restored. The Robert Jones Administration Building, Brooks Chapel, the Longmore Inn and Harry Hoosier Hall were erected. Tragedy struck again in 1969 when Hurricane Camille destroyed 26 buildings.

Bishop Brooks had the support of the local churches. In particular, the St. Rock U.M.C. which was destroyed in the 1947 storm. Bishop Brooks saw to it that it was rebuilt in 1950. Worship service is still held there in memory of its history just as Gulfside.

Gulfside was the only place in the United States where blacks had unlimited access to the sea for recreational purposes. It was the only place in most of the southern area where blacks and whites could share ideas and socialize without disturbances.

Many feel Gulfside is not needed. It has been proven over and over again that it is needed now more than ever.

Take a look at our youth today. The jail is so overcrowded until they are sleeping on the floor. Gulfside is equipped with activities that may defer youth from partaking of drugs, alcohol and bad company.

A dream occurred in the 1920's that should long be remembered. We must do everything in our power to support and keep Gulfside alive. For it was built upon love. Wide as the world is thy command. Vast as eternity they love, firm as a rock - thy truth must stand when rolling years shall cease to move again.

Dear Editor:

Valentine's Day is Saturday, Feb. 14. And, as you may know, February is American Heart Month. To observe the occasion, the Heart Association is making a special attempt to offer our lifesaving information to the public.

Almost half of all Mississippians die from cardiovascular disease. Chances are, many of your readers will be affected by heart attack or stroke this year.

We can provide free brochures which can help reduce the chances of experiencing a heart attack or stroke. These risk factors are smoking, high blood pressure and a diet high in cholesterol.

Please encourage your readers to make this the year they give their loved ones a true gift from the heart. Call our toll-free number 800-451-3744, or write today for information which could add years of health and happiness.

Legislative Update

By Ellen Ann Fentress
A feud between House members from north and south Mississippi over highway funding and continued muscle flexing by House rebels ended a deadline week at the Mississippi Legislature.

Last week marked the deadline for committee consideration of general bills, and committee sessions culminated in the House and Senate floor until the Thursday deadline passed.

Another major deadline comes this Thursday, the last day for floor action on general bills.

A north-south Mississippi split over a $1.5 billion statewide highway improvement program brewed on in the House last week. Northeastern Mississippi representatives attempted to force Coast support for the highway plan by proposing to tie funds for a project near to the Coast's heart to the highway plan's passage.

Two weeks ago, most Coast bills were pending in the other

Eyes on Mississippi

By Bill Minor

A spunky little woman legislator named Millette "Wooley" Tate, of Piquette, took one of the new reform rules adopted by the Mississippi House and whipped the Old Guard last week.

Since 1964, the House has had a rule providing that any pending bill not acted on by a committee after 20 legislative days may be withdrawn from the committee by a majority vote of the entire House and immediately acted upon or sent to another committee.

It was a rule Gov. J.P. Coleman, knowing the Old Guard system of bottling up bills in committee, had insisted on when he became governor, in return for taking no part in the historic 1964 speakers race between Speaker Walter Sillers and William Winter.

But if memory serves, no bill had ever been successfully withdrawn until last week when Rep. Tate did it on a bill which many believe will help rural Mississippians get better fire insurance rates.

The bill had been left without action in the House Insurance committee and was about to die last Thursday night under the legislative deadline for committees to report on pending bills.

Actually, the withdrawal rule had been nullified back when the Legislature began limited annual sessions in 1970 and put in a deadline schedule for processing legislation. The deadline for committees to act on general bills came before the 20 legislative days had passed. (Only days on which the Legislature actually meets are considered legislative days.)

As a consequence, there has technically been no way to withdraw a bill for years, but the House leadership did nothing to change the rule.

That was one of the seven rules that the House reformers tackled in their package of changes they put through over the objection of House Speaker Buddie Newman and his allies. The new rule says any bill not acted on by the 29th calendar day of the session can be withdrawn.

Tate had filed her withdrawal motion on Wednesday, the 29th calendar day, and let it lie over 24 hours before calling it up. That could have persuaded Rep. Teddy Millette of Pascagoula, the insurance committee chairman, to call a meeting and act on the bill, but he didn't.

There isn't even a place in the order of business of the House designated for acting on withdrawal motions, indicating how little regard House leaders have had for the procedure to pry bills loose from the powerful House committee system.

Tate had been advised that a motion is highly privileged and consequently could be called up at any time. But when she made her move to call it up on Thursday, she was told by Speaker Newman, on the advice of parliamentarian J. A. Bud Thigpen, that it would take a two-thirds vote to reverse the order of business.

Normally a two-thirds vote is very hard to get, particularly on a controversial matter, such as the rural fire insurance measure. But Tate, with practically all the rules reform forces backing her, got it, 71-34. After that, the simple majority vote to actually withdraw the bill was a piece of cake.

Under the withdrawal rule, Tate could have immediately had the bill acted on by the whole house sitting as a committee. Instead, she gave the committee system one more shot to act, but she picked Rep. Ralph Doxey's Judiciary B committee to do it.

Moments after the House adjourned, Doxey called his committee to consider the bill (Thursday being the deadline day), and Tate was given the chance to discuss the measure which she hadn't been given by Millette. Rep. Charles Williams of Senatobia, a key foe of Tate's bill, also was heard, and then the committee, by a show of hands, approved the measure overwhelmingly.

Even then, Tate's bill faced tough odds in getting passed in this deadline week with 200 bills ahead of it.

Her measure, which she drafted after gathering information all over the state on the rural fire insurance crisis, would require the State Rating Bureau to adopt current standards of the national Insurance Services Office (ISO) in rating rural fire departments.

She contends that the state is using outdated standards that do not take into account present capability of rural fire departments to suppress fires using water supplies from "fire ponds" built according to specifications of the Soil Conservation Service.

"All homeowners outside of cities are now automatically rated in class 10 which doubles and sometimes triples their fire insurance rates," she said.

Her bill, she said, would give many rural areas in organized fire districts a chance to upgrade their ratings and lower insurance costs. This has been the experience in 45 other states, and I don't see why we let the status quo prevail," Tate declared.

With a nickname like "Wooley" most of her colleagues never took her seriously. What they found out last week is this bantam-sized lady is a buzz-saw who never quits.

There's no doubt being a woman in the Mississippi House is a handicap, unless you play the role of a go-along, go-slow sweet Southern Belle type.

Wooley is just not going to play that role. Nor is she going to be underestimated any longer.

Housekeeping

Weekly Summary
from

Mississippi House of Representatives

By Andrew Reese
House Information Officer

Floor action was expected to take priority this week in the Mississippi House of Representatives as lawmakers, moving into the second month of the 1987 session, tackled a mountainous stack of bills.

More than 200 bills and resolutions were approved last week by House committees and sent to the bulging calendar for consideration by the full House. The deadline for floor action on most of these measures is Thursday, Feb. 12.

Among the numerous bills awaiting floor action at the end of the past week were several measures aimed at helping cope with rural fire insurance problems, a series of proposed amendments to the State Constitution, a compulsory auto liability insurance proposal, a plan to reorganize the state's three Supreme Court districts, and a proposed residential landlord-tenant act.

A number of other bills failed to survive last week's deadline for committee action on general bills and constitutional amendments. Several motions were filed under a new House rule to withdraw bills from committees if committees took no action on the measures.

In some instances, bills failed to clear House or Senate committees but remained viable since similar bills were pending in the other chamber.

Several controversial proposals were approved by House committees and were awaiting floor action at the close of the past week, including proposed constitutional amendments dealing with a state lottery and a reorganization of the state's system of higher education.

A bill calling for a referendum on a constitutional convention was defeated in committee but reached the House calendar on a minority report.

While most of last week's attention was on committee work, several important measures won House approval and were sent along to the Senate.

The House approved some revisions in a student assessment testing program established under the 1982 Education Reform Act. Basically, the bill would give education officials more flexibility in deciding the grades in which to administer the tests. At present, the law specifies the tests shall be given in grades 3, 5, 7 and 11.

Recommended by the state Department of Education, the bill still would require students to pass a literacy test to get their diploma. It would allow students to receive a Certificate of Attendance, instead of a diploma, if they fail the literacy test but meet other graduation requirements.

Additional associations support Mississippi for Tort Reform

Three additional business associations have joined a list of 33 statewide business organizations supporting legislation to revise the state's tort system.

The 36 organizations, representing most of the major business, industrial, and professional groups in Mississippi, are calling on the Legislature to revise tort system laws and put an end to what the business group believes is a "litigation-prone environment" in which business is being forced to operate in the state.

The Mississippi Bankers Association, the Mississippi Railroad Association, and the Mississippi Eye, Ear, Nose and Throat Association are the latest to join the growing list of business groups lining up in support of tort reform.

Meanwhile, Bob Pittman, president of the Mississippi Economic Council, one of the business organizations supporting tort reform, said, "The Legislature must recognize that the issue of tort reform is an economic development issue. Mississippi cannot expect to advance economically if we allow the tort reform system to continue to operate as it does today."

The 36 business associations are calling for reforms in the system which include restrictions on the doctrine of joint and several liability, limitations on awards of punitive and other noneconomic damages in liability lawsuits, a reduction in the statute of limitations affecting liability lawsuits, penalties for filing of frivolous lawsuits, and tough requirements for exemption from jury duty.

Almost half the businesses in Mississippi have made decisions adversely affecting their own economic growth, and affecting Mississippi's economic expansion, because of the threat of liability lawsuits, Pittman said.

We must revise the system if we are to compete in the arena of economic development and if we are to encourage existing business to expand.

A recent survey of Mississippi businesses, Pittman added, indicates that business owners and operators are being forced to reject investment opportunities, pass up the creation of new products, delay expansion of in-state operations, and even reduce employees because of the liability risks involved.

The present tort system also affects external development, Pittman said, pointing out that 39 other states have already enacted tort reform legislation.

"Mississippi cannot compete with these other states in the economic development arena unless we correct problems within our tort system," he said.

representatives opposed the highway program, which would four-lane roads in other parts of the state through about a 3.5 cent per gallon net increase in fuel taxes and other revenue sources.

At that time, Coast representatives were criticized for sectionalism and threatened that their opposition to building highways in other parts of the state could cost them support for projects that aid the Coast, such as the Navy port and state funds for the State Port at Gulfport.

Northeastern representatives tried to get their support by tying the highway funds to the state support for a causeway needed before the Navy could locate a port in Pascagoula. The move to tie the two bills failed.

Also in the House last week, rebels took advantage of new House procedural rules enacted in a January uprising to democratize House procedures, including a new timetable to allow bills to be pulled out of hostile committees before becoming deadline casualties.

A bill to adopt national fire rating standards for rural fire protection was yanked from the House Insurance Committee. Also pulled from their committees were two bills to provide for limits on lawsuits.

Receiving another week's reprieve was a proposal to hold a November referendum on writing a new state constitution. The Senate passed the bill, but it was rejected by the House Constitution Committee 10-2 on Wednesday, but two committee supporters of a referendum filed a minority report that could place the proposal before the full House for a vote this week.

Also coming from the House Constitution Committee were proposals to hold a statewide vote on reducing Mississippi's eight universities to three and a statewide vote on establishing a state supported lottery to help pay for the $1.5 billion highway plan.

Two other gambling measures—to pave the way for jai alai in Harrison County and horse racing tracks in Jackson and Tunica counties—won approval last week.

The jai alai bill would allow a county referendum on whether to let private investors build a $20 million jai alai facility with pari-mutuel betting. The measure passed the Senate Finance Committee 8-6.

The House is set to take a vote on horse racing, following its Ways and Means Committee's approval of legislation to pave the way for votes in Jackson and Tunica counties to consider opening the counties to tracks with pari-mutuel betting.

House Bill 1113, Amendment 1 Amendment No. 1 would have tied a $12 million state bond issue to construct a causeway to a proposed U.S. Navy Home Port in Jackson County (on the Coast) to passage of a $1.5 billion highway program.

This was proposed because some Northeast House members were disgruntled because Coast representatives voted against the highway bill. It failed by a vote of 39-73.

Phillips, Nay; Holston, Nay.

House Bill 101, Amendment 2

House members rejected 25-86 a move to divest the Mississippi Public Employees' Retirement System of interest in businesses that have holdings in South Africa.

Phillips, Nay; Holston, Nay.

House Bill 1010, (Final Passage)

This bill made state employees eligible for retirement after 25 years of service rather than 30. Some penalties would be involved. It also increases benefits for all state retirees by 5 percent. It passed 111-5.

Phillips, Yea; Holston, Yea.

The Senate passed SB2373 unanimously. It provides as a part of the pre-sentencing procedure for a statement on the impact of the crime on the victim before final sentencing.

Also passed 49-1 was SB2374. It provides that crime victims may be present and seated at the prosecution table during trials. Hob Bryan was the lone Nay vote.

Senate Bill 2324

The Senate approved 33-18 a measure that requires municipalities that own utilities to go through the Public Service Commission before being able to claim eminent domain.

$38 million Jackson VA clinic in budget

WASHINGTON—Mississippi Congressmen G.V. "Sonny" Montgomery and Wayne Dowdy announced today that the Reagan Administration has included in its proposed FY '88 budget for the Veterans Administration a $38 million clinical addition project for the Jackson VA Medical Center.

Montgomery, who chairs the House Veterans' Affairs Committee, and Dowdy, a senior member of the Committee, said they are pleased that the Administration has given the project such a high priority. The proposal is one of only two clinical improvement projects nationwide to be included in the Administration's proposed VA budget.

The project calls for a five-level clinical addition for inpatient/outpatient psychiatry, psychology, mental hygiene and surgical services:

—Basement level — operating rooms, outpatient surgery and recovery

—First floor — offices, main lobby, outpatient psychiatry

—Second level — neurological bed section and support

—Third level — inpatient psychiatry

—Fourth level — intensive care and cardiac care units, medical diagnostic clinics for cardiology and respiratory diseases

The 36 organizations supporting tort reform legislation include the following:

Associated Builders & Contractors, Associated General Contractors, Electric Power Associations of Mississippi, Independent Nursing Home Association, and Mid-Continent Oil & Gas Association.

And also, all of Mississippi, the Alarm Association, Asphalt Association, Automobile Dealers Association, Bankers Association, Cable Association, Concrete Industries Association, and Consulting Engineers Association.

Also, Contractors Council, Dental Association, Economic Council, Eye, Ear, Nose & Throat Association, Farm Bureau Federation, Forestry Association, Funeral Directors Association, Health Care Association, Home Builders Association and Hospital Association.

And, League of Savings Institutions, Manufacturers Association, Municipal Association, Optometric Association, Petroleum Council, Petroleum Marketers Association, Poultry Association, Propane Association, Railroad Association, Realtors Association, Road Builders Association, State Medical Association, Subcontractors Association and Trucking Association.

requirements. Along with other provisions, an amendment was inserted to ensure that students are given a literacy test prior to the 9th grade.

A proposal to reorganize the Mississippi Memorial Stadium Commission also was approved by the House last week. Backers said the bill was part of efforts to resolve problems at the 62,500-seat stadium and make sure it is used to the fullest extent possible.

The restructured commission would consist of five members appointed by the governor with the initial appointments for staggered terms. There would be one member from each Supreme Court District, one from the state at large, and one from Hinds County where the stadium is located. Other provisions include a requirement that concession sales at the stadium be audited.

An amendment was approved to permit Jackson State University to receive one-half of the profits from concession sales and the stadium on games when JSU is the home team.

Other bills approved recently by the House would allow grain dealers and grain warehousemen to provide irrevocable letters of credit, in lieu of surety bond, in seeking a license; direct the Board of Education to establish a screening program for students with abnormal spinal curvatures; designate the Tennessee-Tombigbee Waterway Bridge in Itawamba County in honor of the late Congressman John Hankin; permit Boards of Supervisors in counties with two judicial districts to operate only one jail in the county; clarify labeling requirements for light wine; and revise a state law dealing with oil field unitization by reducing the required approval rate of royalty and working interest owners to 75 percent for compulsory fieldwide unitization.

A number of Bills involving the state's correctional system were approved, including a measure to require that offenders who are 21 and younger are confined separately from older inmates.

In addition, the House voted to reenact the state's Community Service Restitution Act for non-violent first offenders, and to expand a joint state-county work program for inmates authorized in 1983 on a limited basis.

Point of Law

(Prepared by the Mississippi State Bar. Some rights may vary from locality to locality. Always consult an attorney when in doubt about your legal rights.)

Q: I gave myself a present - a new car with a factory-installed sunroof. It leaks, and while my dealer has been extremely kind, the more he "fixes" it, the more it leaks. What can I do?

A: Mississippi has followed several other states in adopting a statutory approach to this problem. If you bought your car after July 1, 1985, the new law applies and if your car does (or doesn't do) something covered by an express warranty your dealer has to fix it. If he doesn't or isn't able to, there's a private appeals process you can follow which may result in your getting a new car or a full refund of the purchase price. The dealer is required to inform you of whom to contact about this process. It may be your warranty book. If not, contact an attorney.

Q: While my car was being repaired, the shop gave me a loaner. I didn't notice something a passing highway patrolman did. The inspection sticker was expired. I explained the car wasn't mine, but he wrote me a ticket anyway. Do I have to pay it?

A: You certainly wouldn't think so, but the law regarding safety inspections for vehicles in Mississippi doesn't say who is obligated to get the inspections or who is liable for the fines if an inspection sticker is expired. Talk to the shop owner. He may willingly pay the fine or reduce your repair bill by the amount. If he doesn't, you might tell the judge what happened. Since the violation was non-moving, the ticket shouldn't count in driving records. The state maintains and to which insurance companies have access.

Heard received his BS degree in forestry and MS degree in wildlife management from Louisiana State University. After graduating from college, he served as biologist with the former Mississippi Game and Fish Commission.

He started his career with the Soil Conservation Service in Mississippi working as a biologist and later as biologist and soil conservationist in Florida and the Caribbean area.

He was liaison to the Environmental Protection Agency in Atlanta for two years, serving eight southern states, before accepting the position of assistant state conservationist for operations with the Soil Conservation Service in Jackson.

Heard has received numerous honors including two outstanding performance awards from the Soil Conservation Service for his contributions to that agency.

Mississippi Power is contributing some $150,000 to MSU's aquaculture research program and is leasing the university approximately 10 acres outside the Gulfport at its Power Plant Watson for redfish research.

The location of Mississippi Power's electrical generating facilities coupled with MSU's general expertise and aquaculture experience led naturally into this joint venture.

Visa and MasterCard are accepted at Carey on the Coast registrations.

The courses will cover basic land economics, terms, categorizations, and principles of the real estate license act needed by salespersons. The real estate principles course Redfish—also known as red drum—are currently being raised, mostly in Texas as small fingerlings, to be released into the wild for recreational fishing. However, this doesn't solve the problem commercial fishermen have in obtaining the fish for restaurants and groceries.

Robinette said MSU will be looking at the potential for raising redfish for commercial aquaculture, much as it has already done with the $215 million catfish industry.

"Mississippi has the most technology for the domestic raising of fish, many of the catfish feed ingredients are grown in the state and most of the processing plants are farmer-owned."

He said a hatchery containing large brood tanks is currently under construction on the Coast, along with experimental outdoor production ponds. Twenty-to-25-pound brood fish will be used in daylight and temperature controlled rooms where the spawning cycle will be shortened from once a year to every 90 to 150 days.

"There is a lot we don't know about the redfish, such as environmental requirements, geographical restrictions and salinity (saltwater) and temperature tolerance," Robinette said. "We do know that they get stressed at 4 degrees centigrade and lower."

One of the areas on which Robinette will be focusing involves the development of a feed for the redfish, similar to what has been developed for the catfish. The ingredients remain uncertain, but Robinette believes the redfish may need more protein than its whiskered cousin.

Another problem to be solved is stocking densities—how many fish to put into what size pond to obtain the best marketable-sized fish. This is where agricultural economist Fuller comes in, determining which density, if any, is more economically feasible. And, of course, there is the economic feasibility of the entire project.

"The pure cost of production hasn't been determined," Fuller said. "We don't know whether a marketable-sized fish can be raised in one year."

Researchers will be trying for a one-and-a-half-pound fish to market, but it will take a while before they can determine if this weight can be achieved during the proper time frame. Robinette estimates that between three to five years may be required to work out the mechanics of redfish culture before the economic feasibility of such a project is thoroughly investigated.

However, researchers agree that their work must begin immediately.

"Traditional agriculture is in a terrible state in Mississippi," Fuller explained.

"Aquaculture is the only major farming enterprise making money now and, with the trend for seafood consumption going up and red meat going down, we're looking for alternative crops. Redfish may be one."

RED CROSS SOLUTION TO SENSIBLE EATING

Active young professionals, busy working mothers and other on-the-go people are usually looking for time-savers. When it comes to food, there are now ways to save time and still eat right. Eating frozen dinners and fast-foods is not the only solution.

The American Red Cross, often associated with disaster relief and teaching life-saving techniques, has introduced a new, six-class course called Better Eating for Better Health. Darlene Underwood, Hancock County Extension Home Economist and a certified Red Cross Instructor predicts it will give most people "quite a few life-saving and time-saving tips about how to put together a more nutritious diet, without having to spend a lot of time shopping and fixing food."

Going beyond the basic four food groups, the Red Cross course covers such topics of current interest as how to reduce fat, sugar and sodium in one's diet; ways to eat sensibly when dining out; tips for decoding food labels; how to eat to reduce the risk of developing heart disease, cancer, high blood pressure and other diseases; plus budget-stretching and time-cutting meal planning tips.

Better Eating for Better Health begins on Thursday, Feb. 19 at the new Hancock Medical Center. To register for the course series, call me at 467-5456.

OLD LUCY—Dr. Donald Johanson poses with the three-million-year-old skeletal remains of "Lucy," the oldest known ancestor to man. Johanson, a world-renowned anthropologist, discovered Lucy's bones along with the remains of 13 other hominid creatures in 1974-75 in a remote region of Ethiopia. At the time, the discovery rocked the anthropological world and fueled academic debate searching for man's earliest beginnings. Johanson will present "In Search of Our Origins" during the next University of Southern Mississippi Honors College lecture, Feb. 17, at 7 p.m. in Bennett Auditorium. The public is invited, free of charge.

LATEST CRP SIGNUP

The fourth signup for the Conservation Reserve Program (CRP) is continuing until Feb. 27 at the Agricultural Stabilization and Conservation Service office.

In this latest signup period, producers can enter a contract beginning with either the 1987 or 1988 crop year. The signup is expected to be heavy this time.

The CRP gives farmers an opportunity to receive annual income from marginal land and at the same time take these marginal lands out of production. The land can be put into timber production or into pastures.

The highest accepted bids in Mississippi in the last two signup periods were $45 per acre per year for the 10-year life of the program. Remember, that the maximum bid may not be the same for this period; top bids for each state are set in Washington, D.C.

Keep in mind, too, that there may not be another signup period if you miss this one. Congress has not approved funds for another signup.

This is a good opportunity for some Hancock County farmers. For more information on CRP, contact the ASCS office, the Soil Conservation Service or the County Extension office.

TREE PLANTING WEEK

The week of Feb. 13-19 is Tree Planting Week in Mississippi. The week, which coincides with National Arbor Day on Feb. 13, emphasizes the value of tree planting and forestry in Mississippi.

Arbor Day is set aside to observe the importance of trees by planting memorial trees around other trees, schools, homes and almost anywhere else you want to plant a tree. Tree Planting Week in Mississippi has been a successful and popular activity since 1975.

I invite you to join me and others in Hancock County in making Tree Planting Week a success in 1987.

PROTECT TREES FROM INSECTS

If you have small pine trees or Christmas trees, they could be damaged by an insect known as the Zimmerman pine moth.

Pine trees of Christmas tree size as well as Christmas trees are favorite targets of the Zimmerman pine moth. The problem appears to be more intense in open trees rather than in tight, full-stocked plantings.

If you notice new tree growth wilting or browning, the problem could be the Zimmerman pine moth. The damaged parts of the tree will arc and curve downward to look like a "fishhook" or "shepherd's crook." Infested pine trees eventually die in late summer or fall.

Stopping the Zimmerman pine moth takes both sanitation and spraying. For chemical control, use Dylox, dimethate, Endosulfan or lindane. Apply the insecticide in mid-June and/or mid-July. You must spray the entire tree and trunk for control.

CHECK PLANTS IN WINTER

It is a good idea to check houseplants frequently during the winter months. Home heating tends to dry plants and could damage them. Also, water plants when the soil is dry to the touch, and make sure plants get enough light.

FARMWEEK

On Feb. 16, program highlights the Dixie National Livestock Show Sale of Champions. The program airs at 7:30 p.m., on the Mississippi Educational Television Network.

Faith Assembly conducts marriage seminar in Kiln

A marriage and family seminar will be conducted through Saturday at Faith Assembly of God, Highways 603 and 49, Kiln.

A special guest will teach on subjects concerning family and marriage relationships beginning at 7 p.m. tonight through Saturday.

Pastor Bradley said all adults are welcome to attend, adding, "If you are contemplating marriage, this is for you."

Highlighting the seminar will be a dinner in the church's fellowship hall.

USM forum presents 'Lucy' lecture Feb. 17

An anthropologist who unearthed the bones of the oldest known ancestors of modern man will be the next featured speaker Feb. 17 in the University of Southern Mississippi Honors Forum Spring 1987 lecture series.

Sponsored by the USM Honors College, all forum lectures are held at 7 p.m. in Bennett Auditorium and are open to the public free of charge.

Dr. Donald C. Johanson startled the anthropological world in 1974 with his discovery in a remote, and virtually unexplored region of Ethiopia—of the oldest, most complete human fossil ever found, the three-million-year-old "Lucy."

One year later, in 1975, Johanson further surprised the world with the recovery of additional fossils from the same area—representing some 13 individuals, popularly called the "first family."

Lucy was discovered by Johanson and graduate student Tom Gray as they were returning to camp after an uneventful morning in the field. Johanson spotted a piece of bone, long hidden by layers of sediment and volcanic ash. The fossil had been uncovered by flash floods that, on rare occasions, erode the parched gullies of Ethiopia's Afar badlands.

The bone was hominid, a bit of an arm. Another bone, a part of a skull, was found nearby. Suddenly, the site seemed to sprout fossils—a bit of thigh bone here, a couple of vertebrae and some ribs there, and further on a part of a pelvis and parts of a jaw.

After three weeks of careful excavation, the slope and surrounding terrain rendered several hundred more pieces of bone. When they were pieced together, they proved to be part of a thick-limbed, single individual—an adult female 3-feet-8-inches tall, weighing some 65 pounds.

Although much of Lucy's skull was missing, roughly 40 percent of her skeleton was recovered. Such a find was extraordinarily valuable, since at that point in hominid evolution fossil remains consisted largely of teeth and fragments of jaws. But the most important facet of the discovery was Lucy's pelvis, which established without question that she walked with an erect bipedal stride some three-million years ago.

Walking upright on two legs, or bipedalism, was recognized to be a primary character that separates us from our nearest relatives, the apes. For more than a century, scientists believed that big brains, stone tools and bipedal posture evolved together. But Lucy, though upright, lacked stone tools and possessed a small brain. The anthropological story had to be rewritten.

At the time, Johanson's findings provided a direct challenge to the widely known theories held by world-renowned anthropologists Louis, Mary and Richard Leakey. The Leakeys held that man's ancestors first emerged on the scene some two-million years ago in Kenya's Olduvai George and possibly at other sites in eastern Africa. Johanson's discovery of Lucy and the other skeletal remains in Ethiopia contracted the Leakey theory by some one-million years.

Johanson has revised the theory of human evolution in a 1982 book co-authored with Maitland A. Edey, "Lucy: The Beginnings of Humankind," which won the 1981 American Book Award in Science, and now has been translated into 10 languages. In addition to his book and PBS television specials, the anthropologist has written some 10 articles for professional and popular journals.

He is the founding director of the Institute of Human Origins in Berkeley, Calif., where field and laboratory research continues to study man and his origin.

On Feb. 24, the following forum lecture will feature free-lance writer and nuclear activist Paul Loebe's presentation of "Living With The Bomb."

For more information about the USM University Forum Spring 1987 lectures, call the USM Honors College at (601) 266-4533.

Stadium to be renamed in honor of veterans

Senator Robert H. "Bob" Smith of Richland said that he is pleased to report to Mississippi veterans that the Mississippi Senate voted unanimously to pass his bill which will rename the stadium in Jackson in honor of veterans.

Smith's bill, which was co-authored by 23 Senators, names the stadium the Mississippi Veterans Memorial Stadium.

"The present name, Mississippi Memorial Stadium, doesn't indicate who the memorial honors," Smith said. "When the original stadium opened in 1950, it was called the Veterans War Memorial Stadium. As control of it was changed over the years, its name was changed twice. Now it is time to right a wrong and return its name to honor all our veterans for their valiant efforts and contributions for our state and nation."

Smith, who began work on this bill in 1983, noted that the legislation allows the veterans' organizations to donate funds or equipment to change the stadium sign.

"I believe that we will have no trouble in raising the money and I stand ready to assist in any fund-raising projects," said Smith, who represents Rankin, Copiah and Simpson Counties.

Smith was also instrumental in the passage of the bill last year to appropriate state monies to construct a veterans' nursing home in Jackson. "That was the first bill I ever worked on after I was elected eight years ago. I anxiously await the opening of this facility," Smith said.

ADDRESSES DAR—Joe Pilet displays an original Fire Mark issued in 1849 in the city of Baltimore. Mrs. Pilet of Bay St. Louis addressed the Friendship Oak Chapter NS DAR when that group met on Wednesday at the Ramada Inn in Long Beach. (Staff photo by Edgar Perez).

BALTIMORE FIRE MARK—This is a photo of a Fire Mark of the Associated Firemen's Insurance Company of Baltimore, MD. The company was founded in 1847, reinsured in 1899 in Fidelity of Baltimore which was absorbed in 1900 by the Firemen's of Baltimore.

Pilet addresses DAR

"Let's pull heavy... Let's pull together," Joe Pilet said in addressing members of the Friendship Oak Chapter NS DAR when that group met on Wednesday at the Ramada Inn in Long Beach. Pilet said the "pull together chant" was first used by firefighters as they brought fire-fighting equipment to the scene of the fire.

Pilet said her chapter members could be of very real assistance in fire prevention by insisting that ordinances be passed and enforced prohibiting the burning of trash within city limits, and by a follow-through to make sure there were enough fire hydrants in operable condition and located at strategic locations.

Reminding the group of the danger of fire, Pilet reported Mississippi leads the Continental United States in the number of fire-related deaths per capita. "Fires in the United States every year kill about 12,000 people," she pointed out, "and destroy one and a half billion dollars worth of property."

Listing some of the "Big Blazes" she included a Pestigo, Wisconsin forest fire occurring in 1871 which killed 600 people; a fire in Chicago in 1871 that killed 300 people; another Chicago fire occurring in 1903 killed 575; a New York harbor steamboat fire killed 1,030 people; a Texas City fire in 1974 killed 512 and the recent Puerto Rico hotel fire took the lives of 96 persons.

Pilet urged her chapter's members to cooperate in Fire Prevention Week and said the President of the United States set aside Oct. 6-12 each year for its observance.

She suggested that chapter members plan programs and furnish speakers when requested and encouraged individuals to inspect their own homes for such hazards as faulty wiring and accumulated trash.

She expressed strong feeling that fire drills should be a part of the routine in public schools and that students should be instructed as to what to do in case of fire.

Tracing the history of our country as it parallels the history of fire insurance, Pilet passed around a rare fire mark which was issued in 1849.

Fire marks, she explained, were furnished by fire insurance companies and were placed conspicuously on insured homes.

The marks usually made of iron or wood measured about 9 by 12 inches and assisted volunteer firefighters in learning which fire insurance company covered the loss.

Fires not so designated were apt to go up in flames! Pilet passed around a fire mark which was issued in 1849 and pointed out that George Washington was at one time a volunteer firefighter.

Firefighters were usually unmarried young men, furnished their own uniforms and were socially prominent as they gave balls and frequently paraded.

One parade celebrated Lafayette's visit to our shores. Marching firemen also celebrated the construction of the Erie Canal, and a firemen's parade celebrated the centennial of Washington's birthday.

The formation of the "Bucket Brigade" was explained as a double line with men and strong boys passing the water-filled leather buckets, and women and children returning the emptied buckets to the source of water. Every home that had two chimneys was required to furnish a bucket.

Benjamin Franklin helped to organize the first fire insurance company in North America, Pilet said.

William Penn, she recalled, when settling his late father's estate asked that King Charles II repay a debt of $80,000 by granting land in "American Wilderness" for formation of colonies devoted to the cause of religious freedom.

In 1682 Penn sailed up the Delaware River and saw his colony for the first time. Settlers came by the thousands, pouring in from Germany, the Netherlands, England and Wales.

Penn's "Holy City" was patterned after Sir Christopher Wren's designs when rebuilding London after the tragic fire of 1666 which destroyed most of that city, burning for a week and destroying 13,000 buildings.

Sir Christopher's plan called for fire-resistant materials such as stone, marble, and bricks with wider streets and more public squares.

Displaying a key that unlocks the entrance to Independence Hall, Pilet said the same room in which the Declaration of Independence was signed, was used 16 years later when a group of prominent citizens met to consider formation of a general insurance company to write marine, fire and life insurance.

She said insurance companies have prospered in direct ratio to the growth of our nation, and insurance premium rates would be less if fire prevention precautions were strictly observed.

Concluding her talk, Pilet said, "Let's pull heavy... Let's pull together."

Special 'Junior College Day' scheduled Feb. 27 at Ole Miss

'Junior College' day, a one-day event designed exclusively for prospective transfer students from junior colleges and other institutions, has been scheduled for Friday, Feb. 27, at the University of Mississippi.

Beckett Howorth, director of admissions at Ole Miss, said that a variety of activities have been planned to benefit students interested in transferring to the university.

The day begins at 10:30 a.m. with registration in the Ole Miss Union lobby, and most of the day's activities will be centered around that building. University Chancellor Gerald Turner will greet visitors and offer general information at 11:45 a.m. in room 404. A complimentary lunch will be served in the union cafeteria at noon.

Beginning at 1 p.m., academic information sessions including transcript evaluations and meetings with academic deans and other university officials will be held in the union lobby. Campus tours will be offered, and a campuswide academic open house will be held for students interested in a specific discipline.

From 1:30 to 4:45 p.m., a special 'Student Life and Activity Fair' in the lobby will offer information on admission, financial aid, career choices and job placement. Also available will be information on various areas of student life, including religious organizations, intramural athletics, student media, fraternities and sororities, special interest groups, honoraries and more. Visitors are invited to attend the opening rounds of the third annual Ole Miss Scholars Bowl competition at 2:45 p.m. in the union ballroom.

For prospective transfers interested in watching Saturday's final rounds, or in attending the Rebel baseball team's game with Christian Brothers College or Lady Rebels' basketball contest with Mississippi College, overnight accommodations are available with advance notice to the university's Office of Pre-Admissions, telephone 232-7378 or toll-free in Mississippi 1-800-222-5102.

OLDEST FIRE MARK—The first Mark issued was taken from the dwelling at 46 Almond Street (116 Kenilworth Street), Philadelphia. The oldest Fire Mark dates back to 1752.

Mississippi State hosting 'Discovery: MSU' Feb. 13

Approximately 2,300 high school and junior college students are expected to attend Mississippi State University's "Discovery: MSU" Feb. 13. The event focuses on the diverse academic programs available at MSU.

Registration will begin at 8:30 a.m. in the Union. During this time, students may receive information on admissions, housing, financial aid, cooperative education, band and student organization.

At 11:30 a.m., lunch will be provided for all visitors in Humphrey Coliseum. After lunch, students may enjoy a tour of campus or take advantage of other scheduled activities.

The College of Veterinary Medicine will hold its annual open house from 9 a.m. until 4 p.m. on both Feb. 13-14. Exhibits, demonstrations, a petting zoo and tours will be featured during the veterinary college's open house.

1st annual Artists for the Animals show

The first annual Artists for the Animals Show will be held Friday, Feb. 13th through Friday, Feb. 20th at the Bay St. Louis Public Library. Fine oils, acrylics, watercolors and drawings donated by local artists will be displayed for sale in the library's multi-purpose room daily, except Sunday, during normal library hours.

A preview will be held Thursday, Feb. 12th at the Bay-Waveland Yacht Club from 5:30 until 8:00 p.m. Admission is free. Cocktail dainties will be served and a cash bar will be available.

There will also be a door prize drawing. The winner will receive a pet portrait by Gulf Coast artist Carrie Devault.

The public is invited to both events. All proceeds from the show will go to the Hancock County Humane Society.

Co-chairperson for the benefit are Thyla Rogers, a Jackson Square artist for 13 years and now a coast resident, and Joyce Ohman, special events director for the Humane Society. For further information call 452-3593 or 467-0556.

UNO PRODUCTION—Debbie Griswold, left, and Kerri Rock gossip in the University of New Orleans production of "The Midnight Caller," one of two one-act plays being performed for "Horton Foote: A Celebration" Feb. 18-22 in the UNO Performing Arts Center.

UNO to present two Foote plays

"Horton Foote: A Celebration," a tribute to the work of the award-winning playwright and author of "The Trip to Bountiful" will be presented by the University of New Orleans department of drama and communications Wednesday through Sunday, Feb. 18-22 in the UNO Performing Arts Center.

The program will feature two of Foote's one-act plays, "The Midnight Caller" and "A Nightingale." Performances will be at 7:30 p.m., Feb. 18-21, and at 2:30 p.m., Feb. 22. The plays will be directed by guest director Ivan Rider, former artistic director of the New Stage Theatre in Jackson. Rider most recently has directed at various regional theaters including Houston's Alley Theatre and the Dallas Theater Center.

What has made Foote's plays so remarkable, according to Rider, is that they can leap from television to stage to the movie screen.

"It is not uncommon for a successful Broadway play to later be produced for television," said Rider. "It is much more unusual for a television drama to make the leap to Broadway play. Horton Foote is a writer who has experienced this turnabout more than once. Several of his dramas that were originally written and produced for television moved to the Broadway stage, and in some cases, from there to the movie screen."

"The Midnight Caller" was originally produced by the Philco Television Playhouse in 1953 and on Broadway in 1958. A later play, "A Nightingale" is part of a trilogy entitled "The Roads to Home."

Both plays, set in the fictional Harrison, Tex., concern family life in a small Southern town. They explore the need to leave home and the pull to return.

"The Midnight Caller" is the story of a couple whose romance is destroyed by their possessive parents and the small town scandal. The only hope of a new life is to leave their hometown where everyone knows their secrets.

On the other hand, "A Nightingale" portrays a woman who has suffered a nervous breakdown and who longs to leave the big city and return home. In the small Texas town where everybody knows each other she might feel well and whole again.

Foote's own childhood in a small Texas town provided inspiration for many of his quiet dramas about life in the South.

"I came from a very strong oral tradition, being a Southerner," Foote has said. "(Southerners) love to tell you details. They can go on for hours about what this one said and what that one said and what kind of a day it was...I hear things, I listen, I listen."

Foote is a two-time Oscar winner for his screenplays "Tender Mercies" and "To Kill a Mockingbird," the latter of which was adapted from Harper Lee's novel. His other recent movies include "The Trip to Bountiful" (1985), which netted Geraldine Page an Oscar as best actress, and "On Valentine's Day" (1986).

The UNO cast for "The Midnight Caller" includes Debbie Griswold, Kerri Rock, Jeanie Wilber, David Skeele, Kelly Ann Ward, Wayne Camp and Alvena Cain. Cast members of "A Nightingale" are Rock, Cain, Rhonda Weidner and Thomas Rudolph.

Tickets ($4 general admission, $3 general students, and $2 senior citizens) will be available at the UNO box office weekdays, beginning Feb. 16, from 10 a.m. to 3 p.m. and one hour before each performance. For information and reservations, call 286-6805.

AARP to hear special guest on Monday

Mrs. Kay Coleman will address the Hancock County Chapter of the American Association of Retired Persons on Monday.

Donald Mauffray, AARP vice-president said the regular monthly meeting will begin at 10 a.m. at the American Legion Home on Coleman Avenue, Waveland.

Mrs. Coleman, now a resident of Waveland, has been associated with the health insurance industry for nearly 20 years.

She was a life and health insurance claims examiner for five years before she was named manager and vice-president of the claims department at Mid-American Insurance Company in Kansas City, Mo.

During the past two years Mrs. Coleman has worked with insurance accounts in the business office at Hancock General Hospital in Bay St. Louis.

Kmart donates clothing to Food for Hungry

A donation of new clothing valued at more than $12 million has been given to the Food For The Hungry project by Kmart.

This donation was reported recently by Neil Brown of Kmart, Ben Kinchlow, Christian Broadcasting Network executive vice president, and Dr. Ted Yamamori, president of Food For The Hungry.

Food For The Hungry is donating approximately $5.5 million of the clothing to CBN's humanitarian outreach, "Operation Blessing."

Kinchlow announced receipt of the clothing gift moments after he was officially given the "Two Hungers Award" by Food For The Hungry International at a Congressional breakfast in the nation's capital. The annual award is presented to recognize outstanding involvement in meeting the world's two greatest hungers, spiritual hunger and physical hunger.

"We are grateful to receive this most generous gift from Food For The Hungry and Kmart. This is a time when clothing is in great demand for the homeless, poor and those suffering from extreme cold," Kinchlow said.

The clothing received by "Operation Blessing" will be sorted as to size, sex and age range. Transport trucks will then take the clothing to cities throughout the United States.

Kinchlow said he expects most of the clothing to be dispersed within the United States where the homeless situation and those suffering from economic upheaval has increased significantly over the past several years.

"Operation Blessing" operates internationally with an annual dollar assistance of over $50 million. "Operation Blessing" is assisted within the continental U.S. by approximately 14,000 churches of various denominations. In 1986 alone, more than 6 million people were helped with food, clothing or various forms of shelter assistance.

Rape prevention course offered

Individuals wanting to learn how to protect themselves from rape or assault may benefit from a course to be offered during February by the University of Southern Mississippi Division of Lifelong Learning.

The course, which costs $15, will introduce students to the concepts of rape prevention and the self-defense techniques of Jiu-Jitsu and American Kenpo Karate. Class discussions will focus on topics such as the definition of rape, myths concerning rape and the basic types of rapists.

The class will meet from noon to 2:30 p.m. on Saturdays through Feb. 28 in the lobby of McEmore Hall.

Dr. Len Brassard will instruct the course.

For information phone 286-4201 or write Southern Station Box 5056, Hattiesburg, Ms. 39406-5056.

population, voter population and other topics as part of an application for retroactive approval of the change from a single elected trustee to two elected trustees.

Any change in election procedures or districting must be approved by the Justice Department as complying with the Voting Rights Act of 1965.

The district was following a state law when it made the change in 1976 and failed to obtain approval at the time.

The state law allowed the election of an additional board member from the outside territory when the student population in that area reached 20 percent.

The Justice Department notified the district of the matter in December.

Gex had recommended that district personnel be used to compile the needed statistics in order to reduce legal fees.

In other business Monday, the board:

—Agreed to advertise for bids on a word processor for the district's central office and on a school depository;

—Accepted the resignation of fifth grade reading and English teacher Shirley Walton;

—Granted the Bay St. Louis Parks and Playgrounds Commission permission to construct restrooms at the Little League field next to the Bay High baseball field, provided that those restrooms will be suitably maintained;

—Approved two request for uses of school facilities; and —Agreed to call another special meeting to discuss a proposed building program, with a date to be set later.

The board's March meeting has been moved to March 18 to avoid conflicts with teacher and administrator conferences scheduled during spring holidays.

Bay man arrested on drug charges

By BRENDA HEATHCOCK

Kerry Farve, 26, of No. 44, Bay Royal Apartments, Bay St. Louis was arrested Tuesday and charged with possession of a controlled substance with intent to sell.

He was arrested following the observation of an alleged narcotics transaction by Ray Murphy, Bay St. Louis police chief.

Murphy said Farve fled the scene but was later caught at a Bay St. Louis lounge.

Farve was released from the Hancock County Jail under a $2,000 bond.

East Hancock receives fire rating, certification

East Hancock Fire Protection District has been certified with a fire insurance rating of class 10.

According to Donald Simoneaux, one of the district's commissioners, the certification from the state should reduce fire insurance premiums in the district by up to five percent.

"We understand as fire commissioners that the insurance rates have skyrocketed recently but due to the activities of the East Hancock Volunteer Fire Department and Board of Commissioners some reduction is in order," Simoneaux said.

He urges homeowners to contact their insurance agents in order to negotiate the reduction, which may vary among different insurance companies.

Iowa men jailed on drug charges

BY DENA BISNETTE

Two Iowa men are in the Hancock County Jail awaiting a preliminary hearing on drug charges.

According to Hancock County Sheriff Ronald Peterson, Carl Frank Hill, 36, and Thomas Lee Lauber, 29, both of Davenport, Iowa, were arrested Sunday by Deputies Albert Biehl and Mike Siebert after a check on the 1980 Dodge van Hill and Lauber occupied.

About a half-pound of marijuana was found inside the van, along with various types of drug paraphernalia, the sheriff said. The drugs and other items were confiscated.

Both Hill and Lauber are charged with possession of marijuana with intent to distribute.

DAR chapter to recognize Arbor Day with planting

By Joe Pilet

Members of the Friendship Oak Chapter NS DAR are participating in Arbor Day activities and have received for planting several sycamore shade trees provided by the Forest Service in Hancock County.

Although the Forest service offers free several types of seedlings, the Chapter specified the sycamore because it is a popular shade tree which grows throughout the United States from Maine to Florida.

The fruit of the tree is a round ball, earning for it another name "the buttonwood." As the tree grows the bark peels from the trunk leaving interesting slick patches of exposed new growth.

or 1-800-762-2443

This sycamore is not to be confused with the sycamore mentioned in the Bible, it was explained. The Bible sycamore is a small fig tree of Egypt and Syria which is sometimes called the Pharaoh's Fig.

Arbor Day tree planting commemorates the 200th anniversary of the signing of the United States Constitution.

In ancient times trees were planted in religious ceremonies. The United States celebration of Arbor Day began in Nebraska when J. Sterling Morton, a newspaper publisher, recognized that trees enrich soil, conserve moisture and are pleasant additions to the landscape, helping to keep down air pollution.

Nebraska's Arbor Day was first celebrated April 10, 1872. Other states throughout the years joined the celebration. In 1883 the American Forestry Congress passed a resolution promoting Arbor Day. Mississippi's first observation of Arbor Day was in 1890.

Mississippi's Governor William A. Allain has proclaimed the week on Feb. 13-19 as tree planting week.

And a Happy Valentine Day to You!

I'm sure that most of you are planning some sort of extra-special dessert for the day of days, whether you're dining at home or at a restaurant.

A special dessert - and a spectacular one - is the Mile High Ice Cream Pie, piece de resistance at the famed Caribbean Room of the Pontchartrain Hotel, on St. Charles Avenue in New Orleans.

This ever-so-special sweet is my favorite of favorites for ever-so-special times, ever since the evening, in the '50's, when my parents-in-law took us and our then small sons to the Caribbean Room to celebrate the purchase of our first home - and that's quite a milestone to any young couple, isn't it?

And, somehow, that Mile High Ice Cream Pie, blanketed in hot fudge sauce, became a talisman to us - requested for any and all special occasions, and sometimes in between!

Isn't it amusing that so many of the world's truly famous and truly delicious desserts are rather simply made, but so good? It only fleshes out my theory that over-embellishment ruins a dish, rather than makes for perfection.

And, if you can find a dessert - a creation, let us say - more perfect than this, please let me know! So, there's:

PONTCHARTRAIN'S

MILE HIGH ICE CREAM PIE

(It's the fudge sauce that "does it" for me - I could eat it with a spoon, all by itself, or even on a slice of bread - it's sinfully rich and dark-chocolate, and - well, try it for yourself - "you'll like it.")

You may want to make your own pie crust, or use a prepared one - for this, I prefer to make my own. At any rate:

THE PIE

1 pint vanilla ice cream
1 pint chocolate ice cream
4 egg whites
½ tsp. vanilla
¼ tsp. cream of tartar
½ cup sugar

Layer the ice cream in the pie shell (your own or whatever else) - the vanilla first, then the chocolate. Beat the egg whites with the vanilla and cream of tartar until soft peaks form. Then, add the sugar, gradually, beating and beating until the sugar is dissolved and the mixture is quite stiff and glossy.

Spread this meringue over the ice cream layers to the very edges of the pastry. And, then, broil the whole business for half a minute, or perhaps a whole minute, just long enough to brown the meringue. Then, freeze for several hours, at least.

And - drizzle the marvelously rich chocolate sauce over each serving - that's another sweet story!

CHOCOLATE SAUCE

(Pontchartrain)
2 squares German Sweet Chocolate
2 Squares Bitter Chocolate
¼ pint cream
½ cup sugar

In a double boiler, cook the ingredients until the mixture thickens - but, using only half the cream at the start, and adding the remainder as you cook the sauce, so as to achieve proper consistency for pouring.

(Four to six servings, unless I'm at the table - or my grandsons, in which case, you'd best triple everything - it's a family tradition!)

Fenton woman killed in truck-tree collision

BY DENA BISNETTE

Authorities say a Fenton woman killed in a one-vehicle collision Sunday had apparently lost control of her pick-up truck and hit a tree more than six hours before her body was found.

Margaret Sue Fitch, 22, was found by a passing motorist about 7:15 a.m. Sunday, Sheriff Ronald Peterson said. Her 1976 Chevrolet pick-up had hit an oak tree beside Fenton-Dedeaux Road about a mile from the Kiln-Dellale Road intersection.

Coroner Harold Stiglet, who pronounced Fitch dead at the scene, said the accident had apparently occurred shortly after midnight.

Fitch had suffered an apparent head injury, but more information on the cause of her death is expected when complete results are obtained from an autopsy performed Monday in Orleans Parish, La., Stiglet added.

The coroner said the accident was the first automobile fatality of 1987 in Hancock County. The crash was investigated by Deputy Leo Ladner with assistance from State Trooper Curtis Newman.

BAY HIGH'S Greg Necaise (44) goes up to shoot Monday afternoon in the Tiger vs. Stanislaus game played in the Mississippi Gulf Coast Coliseum in Biloxi. Scoring

Rocks defeat Bay High in Coliseum 55-49

The St. Stanislaus Rockchaws relied on some clutch foul shooting and aggressive man-to-man defense to defeat the Bay High Tigers 55-49 in a varsity basketball game played Monday afternoon in the Mississippi Gulf Coast Coliseum.

Bay High took an early advantage by good offensive rebounding, often getting second and third shots at the basket. At the end of the first quarter, the Tigers held a 12-9 lead. The Tigers' scoring was balanced, as all five starters tallied points in the first quarter.

The second quarter saw both teams battle back and forth, with SSC outscoring the Tigers 12-10. Bay High led 22-21 at halftime. Greg Necaise, Robert Hargett and Dwayne Robertson all had six points for the Tigers, while SSC's John Kellar had eight points, followed by Louis Schruft with six points.

In the third period, the Tigers rallied behind senior Greg Necaise who netted nine points. The rest of the Tiger squad could only manage six points as Bay High increased their lead over the Rocks to two points at the end of the third quarter, 37-35.

St. Stanislaus did take a 29-28 lead midway through the third quarter, as guard YaSin Shabazz drove the lane for the layup. John Kellar followed with an inside jump shot to increase the SSC lead to 31-28, but Bay High came back later in the period to take back the lead.

The fourth period belonged to SSC. Greg Necaise hit for two points against the outstretched arms of Kellar. Shabazz came through the lane for two of his 12 points to put the Rockchaws back on top to stay.

A crucial jump shot from the corner by forward Louis Schruft aided the Rocks, but the Tigers refused to quit. SSC had adjusted their zone defense and were now matching up man-to-man with the Tigers. The Rockchaws were only allowing Bay High one shot at the basket.

Bay-Hancock alumni football to benefit March of Dimes

A Sunday football game between Bay High and Hancock North Central alumni will benefit the March of Dimes.

The game will be played at 2 p.m. Sunday at the Bay High field. March of Dimes representatives will present a trophy to the winning side.

An admission fee of 50 cents will be charged.

According to Matt Karl of the Hancock County Sheriff's Department, which helped organize the event, the most recent graduate playing has been out of school for seven years, while some of the oldest players graduated as much as 25 years ago.

The game will be played according to the rules for seven-man touch football.

Karl said Rene Baum will be quarterback for the Hancock alumni and Irvin Favre, presently head football coach at Hancock North Central High School, will be coach.

The Bay High alumni team's player-coach will be Sheriff Ronald Peterson, who is expected to start at quarterback.

Bay High players in addition to Peterson include Karl, Donald Freeman, Rudolph Tillman, Jimmy Loiacano, Dale Loiacano, J.P. Compretta, Gary Blaize, Douglas Burch, Michael Lee, Ronald Murray, Steve Garber, Stephen Benvenuti and Anthony Summers.

Hancock players in addition to Baum include Bobby Necaise, Berlin Ladner, Daniel Ladner, Kenneth Walsh, Al Walsh, Terry Payne, Bruce Bowman, Nathan Hoda Jr., Barry Hoda and Daniel Curet.

Tigers knock Gulfport out of top soccer slot

The Bay Senior High Tiger Soccer Team has become the first team this year to beat the Gulfport Admirals, moving the 1987 play-offs from Gulfport to Ocean Springs.

Gulfport, previously undefeated, lost its first place position in the 2-1 loss to Bay High Monday, moving Ocean Springs up to number one, Bay Coach Kathy Edwards said.

"It is impossible for me to choose one or two most valuable players for this game - we had a 'most valuable team,'" the coach said.

Craig Adam was assisted by Shane Kowalski on both goals scored by the Tigers.

Doug Rhodes, center halfback, controlled Gulfport's Tim Bruni, who scored the Admirals' only goal on a header.

Sean Foreman, left fullback for the Tigers, held the Admirals' leading forward scoreless and saved one goal.

Joel Duncan, sweeper, coordinated the Tigers' defense and saved two goals.

Scott Demboski, center fullback, and Stephen Barnes, right fullback, pressured the Gulfport offense, keeping the Admirals from scoring.

Bill Wheeler, right wing, played aggressively Monday, usually beating his defender to the ball.

Eddie Bourgeois, goalie, played a superior game with outstanding saves including a free kick save and a "Bruni" "worm burner" penalty shot.

This was the Tigers' final game of the regular season and game captains Bourgeois, Clark and Demboski would like to thank the fans for their support.

Bay High was scheduled to face Gulfport again Wednesday night in the Tigers' first play-off match at Ocean Springs.

Winner of a soccer ball donated by Bay Area Youth Soccer was Sean Edwards. Bay Tiger Soccer sweat-shirt winners were Patty Weems and M.W. Wheeler.

SSC Freshman team ends season 14-2

The St. Stanislaus 9th Grade Basketball season closed out a spectacular 1986-87 season with a heart-breaking 54-51 loss to Stone County in the finals of the Poplarville Tournament held Saturday night in Poplarville.

The SSC Stone game was a tightly contested match between two talented squads. SSC's two losses were both to Stone County, after SSC defeated the Tomcats in their initial meeting at Stone early in the season.

Stone also finished their season with two losses, one to St. Stanislaus and a early-season loss to Bay Jr. High.

Shannon Garrett and Sean Sewell each had 15 points for the Rockchaws, while Shawn Wilson had 15 points for Stone County.

St. Stanislaus held a 14-12 advantage at the end of the first quarter, led by Sean Sewell's six points while Cedric Smith and Shannon Garrett each had four points.

At halftime Stone closed the gap to one point as they outscored the Rockchaws 10-9 in the second period. Stone's Terry McGray had eight of the ten points scored by the Tomcats in the second quarter.

Stone appeared to blow the game wide open in the third period, as they tallied 21 points while holding SSC to 11 points. By the end of the third period, Stone enjoyed a 43-34 lead.

The Rocks fought back and came within a point on several occasions in the fourth period. A balanced scoring attack by the Tomcats preserved the victory, as all five starters contributed points in the final period.

Cedric Smith added 10 points for the Rocks, while Greg Schruft hit for nine points.

"We've had a fine season," commented Coach Rod Herring of the Rockchaws. "Our team worked real hard to improve their skills. We have some fine athletes on the team whom I believe can make contributions to our junior varsity and varsity programs next year."

proved to be the margin of difference.

St. Stanislaus outscored the Tigers 20-12 in the final quarter to take a 55-49 decision.

"We were happy with this big win for us," Coach Chuck Genin stated. "Our team worked hard, and we made the foul shots when we had to."

In the preliminary Junior Varsity game, St. Stanislaus took a 61-24 victory over Bay High. All 11 team members of Coach Jerry Spell scored points, with Bert Dean scoring nine points, followed by Scott Heitzmann with eight points. Shannon Garrett also added eight points and some nice rebounding to the Rockchaw cause.

M. Kennedy led Bay High with eight points, while the four other starters contributed four points each.

The St. Stanislaus Junior Varsity is now 13-1 for the season, with their only loss being a mid-season three-point deficit to Pope John Paul.

JSU to roast Dennis

"Oil Can" Boyd

The Jackson State University baseball team and the Jackson-Hinds Alumni Chapter of the Jackson State University National Alumni Association, Inc. will roast Dennis "Oil Can" Boyd, 8 p.m. Thursday, Feb. 19, at the Holiday Inn Downtown.

"Oil Can" a former JSU standout, is now a pitching star for the Boston Red Sox.

Mississippi State University head baseball coach Ron Polk will be the toastmaster for the affair. The Roasters will include Jackson Mets owner State Sen. Con Maloney, former NFL star Eddie Payton, JSU head baseball coach Robert Braddy, Boston Red Sox scout Ed Scott and Boyd's Financial Adviser George Kalafatis.

Tickets for the Roast are $20 each or $160 per table, which seats eight. For further information, contact the JSU baseball office at 968-2291 or the Sports Information Office at 968-2273.

McCarthy to coach at USM

Former University of Southern Mississippi assistant coach Milo McCarthy is the newest member of the Golden Eagle staff. He was named wide receiver coach today by head coach Jim Carmody and is already busy with recruiting chores.

"Coach McCarthy is both an outstanding coach and recruiter. He has strong USM ties, knows our recruiting area well and we're happy to have him back with us," said Carmody.

A 1968 USM graduate and a former standout player, the New Orleans native served seven years with the Golden Eagles after joining Bobby Collins' staff in 1975. After a standout playing career at USM (1965-67) where he rushed for over a thousand yards and scored 10 touchdowns, he coached four seasons on the high school level prior to returning to USM. He still ranks among USM's top 15 all-time rushing leaders with 1,240 yards.

McCarthy replaces Jack White who served as wide receiver coach last season after White was elevated to the offensive coordinator's post by Carmody.

He is married to the former Jacqueline Ohlsen of New Orleans and they are the parents of three sons.

Pass Christian Middle School has undefeated basketball season

Pass Christian Middle School basketball team, coached by Joseph Brown, went undefeated this season with very impressive stats.

The Pass Middle School Pirates began the season by winning the Pass Christian Invitational Tournament by defeating Ocean Springs, 62-47, following a 41-32 victory over St. Martin 41-32, and in the championship game the Pirates conquered Long Beach by a score of 47-41.

The Pirates opened the regular season by playing host to St. Martin and defeating them by a score of 53-17, followed by downing Long Beach 42-40.

The return game played at Long Beach was not as close. The Pirates won the game 57-52, ending the first half of the season with a perfect record of 6-0.

During the month of January, the Pirates went on a rampage by beating all of their opponents, except one by 20 or more points.

The route began by blowing out

Pearlington by a score of 71-33. After traveling to St. Martin, the Pirates manhandled the Yellow Jackets by outscoring them 61-13.

The next week the Pirates invaded the Bulldogs of Gulfview and unleashed relentless defense, allowing only two points in the first quarter and only two points in the second quarter. The final score of the game was 60-13.

The next week the Pirates played host to C.B. Murphy of Pearlington and outscored them 65-32. The following week, the contest between d'Iberville and the Pirates was to be a tough one. It was no contest.

d'Iberville could only muster five points in the first half, and the Pirates defeated d'Iberville by a score of 57 to 18.

The following week, the Pirates were scheduled to play host to Gulfview, but the game was cancelled. A game between Picayune was scheduled to fill the cancellation which the Pirates thought would be a real challenge; but the challenge lasted about as long as it took to start the game.

The Pirates outscored Picayune 10-3 in the first quarter and at half time the score was 23-11. In the third quarter the Pirates built up a 32-point lead. The final score was 67 for the Pirates and 34 for Picayune. The Pirates have just won 12 in a row.

The final game of the season was dedicated to the players' parents. It called up the re-match between d'Iberville and the Pirates "Parents' Night."

Once again Coach Brown called on his team to play good defense and they responded by upending d'Iberville by a score of 60-14.

"We've got a very hard-working group of guys this year. I think our strengths are quickness and desire to play as a team. The players always encourage each other to play good defense, to apply a lot of pressure on the ball," said Brown.

"Also, having such a large number (17) of players made the team even stronger. We were able to substitute players in groups of five," he continued.

"This team's weakest point was our free throw shooting. We did not shoot free throws well. On the season we shot about 40 percent from the free throw line, which is not all bad considering that we are talking about seventh and eighth grade basketball," Brown said.

"Of course, defense was the key to our perfect season of 13-0," he added.

Defense was the name of the game for this team, but offense was an important component in being able to have a perfect season, Brown stated.

COULD YOU HAVE . . .

. . . a pinched nerve? Many people suffer from pinched nerves and don't know the spine can be the cause. Sometimes, the vertebrae in the spine become misaligned, causing pressure on the nerves. Sometimes this causes back pain, sometimes not. Instead of feeling back pain, you may experience tingling, lightness, hot spots, cold spots, crawling sensations, burning, electric shock sensations, or stinging. These strange sensations are often symptoms of a pinched nerve. Don't wait for it to get worse. Find out now if chiropractic can help you. Call Today!

Coast Episcopal drops game to Plaquemines

The Coast Episcopal High School Raiders Boys basketball team traveled to Plaquemines Christian Academy of New Orleans last Friday and lost 45-21.

A lack-luster Raider performance in the first half allowed Plaquemines to jump off to a big lead and gain a 23-5 lead at halftime. However, the second half was a different story with the Raiders playing tough aggressive defense and attacking the Cowboy man-to-man defense.

Chris Riggs' 7 points, Brandon Smith and Jason Evans' 6 points each, and Mike Kergosien's 2 points led the second half comeback attempt against the Gulf Coast Christian Conference leading Plaquemines Cowboys, who are 5-0 in conference play. This Friday, Feb. 13, the boys and girls basketball teams take on Calvary Christian from New Orleans at the Long Beach Junior High School Gym on Cleveland Ave. The Raider girls are 5-0 in conference play and have a chance to wrap up a perfect conference season and win the championship.

Tip-off time for the girls is 5:30 and for the boys 7 p.m.

The CEHS Student Council and cheerleaders have invited the students from the elementary school in the 5th and 6th grades to be their guests at the games Friday night.

Parents and friends of Coast are invited to join the student body in supporting the teams.

Jump for Joy Pony Club to hold tally Saturday

Jump for Joy Pony Club invites all members, and all children and young people interested in becoming members, and their parents, to attend an instructional rally meeting on Saturday, Feb. 14 at Bay Cove Marina Stables in Bay St. Louis. Arrival time is 8:30 a.m. and will begin at 9 a.m. sharp.

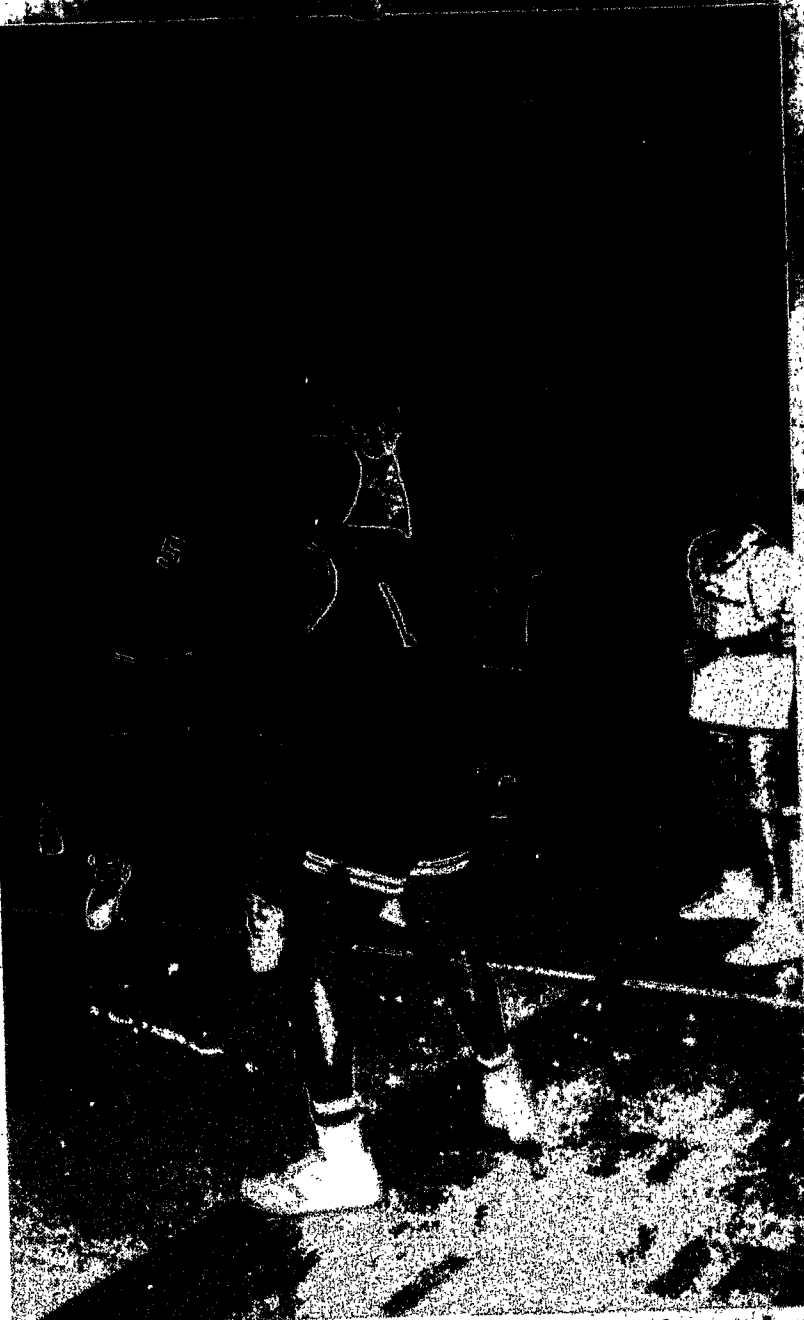

Auriol Hessemer will be the chief instructor, and young riders will be taught riding and jumping at all levels, horse care and management, and how to have fun with your horse.

The Pony Club motto is "A Happy Child on a Happy Horse." Horse ownership is not required.

Jump for Joy Pony Club was delighted to host approximately 12 youngsters at the January rally, the majority of whom will be joining as members at the upcoming meeting, and expects to have an even larger turnout this time.

Future dates planned for rally meetings are Saturday, March 14, Saturday, April 11 and Saturday, May 9.

Please call Auriol Hessemer at 467-0324 or Dianne Garcia at 467-7191 if you plan to attend (this is important so that the day's activities can be organized), and for further information and directions.

RAIDER ACTION—Brandon Smith, No. 33 of Coast Episcopal goes up for a two-point jump shot Friday in action against Plaquemines Christian Academy. Coast Episcopal's Raiders were flat in the first half and lost 45-21 to the Louisiana team in New Orleans.

PRC to finish season Thursday in game against Gulf Coast

The Pearl River College Wildcats rocked along last week in the tough South Division, winning a close 75-74 decision over Utica, but losing to Co-Lin 104-88.

This week the Wildcats will finish up the regular season with a confrontation against rival Gulf Coast on the road Thursday.

"We are in a second place tie at the moment," said Peter Georgian, the Cats' headmaster. "The outcome of games this week could mean a first, second or third place finish for us."

At the present time the Wildcats are 8-4 in division play and 15-9 overall.

The junior college coaches will meet Friday in Jackson to draw up the brackets for tournament play next week at Southwest Junior College in Summit.

Pearl River is being led by Picayune freshman Adrian McCray who is averaging 27 points per contest. Last week against Co-Lin he scored 44 and against Utica he neared 24. McCray is the spark plug, but the Cats have been getting excellent efforts from several players.

"We have been playing well together," Georgian said. "If everyone is healthy we'll be very competitive during the tournament play."

The Jones encounter on Tuesday night was the last game at home this season. The matchup with Gulf Coast at Perkinson will wrap up the regular season.

Up till now every attempt to mimic the best qualities of geese down have run into problems. Somewhere along the line the potential substitute comes a cropper as compared with nature's own contribution. Sometimes one substitute will "melt" and lose its insulation qualities. Another substitute just won't last as long as geese down. But according to reports from a United States Army testing team, there is a goose down substitute that has, so far, withstood every test with (pardon the pun) flying colors. If this substitute can come through on at least a par with goose down (if not superior in some areas), it will certainly cut the cost of producing goose down filled products both for the government and, eventually, for the rest of us.

More and more disabled folk are learning that they need not be denied the pleasures that the outdoor life can give to people. We've since heard of an outfit called Whole Person Tours located at P.O. Box 1084, Bayonne, N.J. 07002-1084, that has expanded the horizons of handicapped people even more. The organization was started by a Mr. Bob Zywicki, himself a wheelchair user, who was often denied access to many areas, including hotels and restaurants as well as many famous attractions across the country because of his situation. Along with his wife, Elizabeth, he started Whole Person Tours, which uses a full-sized specialized motor-coach equipped with a hydraulic lift and wheelchair anchors that permit folks in wheelchairs to board the buses with a minimum of fuss and bother. There's also room to store the wheelchairs on these coaches.

Several U.S. and Canadian tours are being planned for this year. It would be a good idea to contact Whole Person Tours as early as possible to make sure you can get a reservation for a tour that interests you.

There's probably a moral here somewhere for the human race, but I'd just as soon leave the following item as a purely newsworthy offering to wit: that Lake Michigan trout are coming back. Apparently, the good intentions of those who tried to keep the species from dying out because of water pollution, overfishing, and predator invasion made it almost impossible for the fish to reproduce naturally. Since they were being raised in hatcheries for several generations, reproduction capabilities were reduced, largely because of the depletion of the gene pool. Now, however, eggs and sperm are being taken from trout in Lake Lewis in Yellowstone National Park, which reintroduces a greater number of gene variables, giving the fish a larger chance to survive and reproduce on their own.

Parking for UNO baseball will be free

Parking for University of New Orleans baseball games will be free this season, Chancellor Cooper R. Mackin announced. The UNO Privateers open their 1987 baseball season Friday, Feb. 13 at 7 p.m. against Jackson State.

UNO, faced with a series of severe budget cuts by the state, began charging for parking at the UNO Lakefront Arena during basketball games near the end of the season as a way to raise desperately needed revenues.

It was intended that the free parking would continue through baseball season at UNO's Privateer Park. But after conferring with Head Baseball Coach Tom Schwane, Mackin said he believes the university can generate additional revenue by encouraging even more attendance at the baseball games.

"Everyone is excited about the baseball schedule this year," Mackin said in making the announcement. "Tom Schwane should generate the same kind of electricity in Privateer Park this year as Coach Benny Dees has generated with our nationally ranked basketball team. UNO and the entire New Orleans area are fortunate to have these outstanding coaches."

Hunter Convention set

Worldclass hunters and sportsmen from throughout the Southeast will target Jackson Feb. 28, for the Mississippi Safari Club's first Hunter's Convention.

Robert E. Speegle, Dallas, Tex.—Weatherby Award winner and worldclass hunter, "Grand Safaris of Kenya and Tanzania" and "Hunting the World's Mountains"

Jim Carmichael, Jonesboro, Tenn.—shooting editor, Outdoor Life, "Preparing Your Gun for the Hunt"

Thompson Temple, Mountain Homes, Tex.—whitetail and exotic Texas game expert, "Exotic Texas Safaris"

Keith Vincent, Matetsi Safari Area, Zimbabwe—professional African hunter, "Hunting the Big Five"

Will Primos, Jackson—turkey hunting specialist and turkey call manufacturer, "Pursuing the Elusive Turkey"

Jack Jones, Heber Springs, Ark.—rainbow trout guide and accomplished raconteur, "Fishin' Facts"

Other professional sportsmen will be on hand, as will North American and African outfitters and exhibitors of taxidermy, guns, hunting and fishing equipment and wildlife artwork.

Cost is $20 through Feb. 26; $25 at the door.

Moss new state Ducks Unlimited chairman

Ducks Unlimited executive vice president, Dale Whitesell, recently reported that Joe Moss of Clinton has been elected to head the 13,000 member Mississippi D. U. program.

Moss, a native of Hinds County, received his bachelor's degree from Mississippi College and his Juris Doctor from the University of Mississippi.

Whitesell stated that the experience Moss has gained while serving in leadership roles as area chairman, district chairman and state convention moderator, will be extremely valuable.

Mississippi Ducks Unlimited has historically been one of the highest per capita donor states in the nation. The 1986 fund-raising year netted $71,619, which was one of its best years. D. U. nationally raised $50,005,000, which was a record year.

The Mississippi D. U. Convention will be held on Feb. 27 and 28, at the Ramada Inn Hilltop in Natchez. All interested D. U. members are invited to attend. For information, contact Clarence Lea, at 442-4412 or Moss 989-3800.

Moss is an avid outdoorsman, a practicing attorney in Jackson and serves as the Hinds County Prosecuting Attorney. He is married to the former Cheryl Horn and has two children.

Carey tennis coach expects good season

Coach Ron Porter expects 1987 to be another successful year for his William Carey College tennis team. In his sixth year as Crusader coach, Porter has his top five starters from last year's 19-9 team returning.

Number one singles player Kenny Otilio and the number two singles player Kevin Palmiero both are returning for their junior years. Otilio finished with a 17-7 record in 1986-87, while Palmiero finished with a 20-5 record. The two combine to form the number one doubles team. Last year they posted a 19-3 doubles record.

Other key returnees are juniors Greg Williamson and Bill Miller, and senior Mark Bracken.

New players for Carey this year are Andy Kaer, Joey Jarrell and Dave Dufour. Kaer will strengthen both the singles lineup and the doubles teams.

According to Coach Porter, NAIA District 30 (of which Carey is a member) should be very competitive this year. Mobile College is much improved over last year, while Belhaven is an unknown after making a coaching change.

Belhaven won the district last year and Mobile College finished one point ahead of Carey in second place. Coach Porter expects Spring Hill to be about the same as last year's fourth place finish. Southern University of New Orleans is also expected to compete for the first time in the District 30 Tournament in Mobile this year.

The Crusaders open the season this Saturday at home on the Hattiesburg campus against Southeastern Louisiana.

Team members include Mark Bracken, Dave Dufour, Joey Jarrell, Andy Kaer, Bill Miller, Kenny Otilio, Kevin Palmiero and Greg Williamson.

10K Spring Fever Chase set for March 21

Central Bank's ninth annual Spring Fever Chase will be in Fairhope, Ala. Saturday, March 21.

The 10,000 meter and two-mile races are held each year in conjunction with the Eastern Shore Arts and Crafts Festival. For the first time, the two-mile event will be for walkers as well as runners.

The 10K race will begin at 8 a.m. with the two mile run/walk to immediately follow at approximately 9:30. Both races begin at the intersection of Bayview and Fairhope Avenue and will follow last year's course.

"We will work hard to make Spring Fever Chase a quality race for serious runners," said Ed Hilliard, city president of Central Bank. Splits are called at every mile, and at the half way point, and this year we will have five aid stations." Spring Fever Chase is a popular race for local runners and will be a good warmup for the Azalea Trail Run, which will be the following Saturday.

"At the same time, this race has always been popular with weekend joggers and walkers," continued Hilliard. "Many people look forward to participating in the race and then attending the Arts and Crafts Festival afterwards with their families and friends."

All participants will receive a t-shirt specially designed by Dee Dee Fitzhugh. Shirts are guaranteed on race day to everyone pre-registering by March 10. The entry fee is $7 for both races.

Interested persons can pre-register by writing to Spring Fever Chase, Central Bank of the South, Post Office Drawer 489, Fairhope, Ala. 36533-0489.

Curiosity killed the bass

It's hard to believe that the bass isn't a curious fish. Millions of dollars a year are spent on the study of the black bass, its habitat, lure design, and tackle and equipment research and development.

Each year, many new lures are introduced which promise the purchaser more productive fishing trips. If I were a bass, I'd certainly be curious about what this fuss is all about and what those new-fangled objects are darting in and out of my environment.

No matter how much I try to ascribe human characteristics to this sportfish, I realize that this so-called curiosity is probably part of their predatory reflex. (Besides, it's embarrassing to feel outsmarted by a bass with a pea-sized brain!)

"The way the bass acts makes it appear to be curious about things in their environment," states Ken Cook, Evinrude Outboards Pro Team member. "But I think what makes them bite more than anything else is a predatory reflex. Bass are predators, they're keyed to bite things that act abnormally in their environment. Curiosity is a manifestation of their killer instinct."

The best thing to realize about this 'curiosity' characteristic is that it can be used as a productive technique for catching bass.

"Therein lies the key to catching bass," explains Cook. "Make your lure appear to have some abnormality about it. It think that a crank bait that bumps a stump or changes its direction or speed and vibration a little is an erratic abnormal movement."

This technique underlines the general rule of thumb that a retrieve with a consistent movement at a constant pace produces fewer strikes than an erratic mixed-speed presentation that closely parallels a wounded bait fish.

Another tactic which capitalizes on the bass' curiosity is to tease the fish into striking. This is most effective when utilizing a topwater bait, which, when thrown within 8 to 10 feet of the bass, can be twitched to attract and keep his attention. With proper presentation, this type of lure can make bass strike when all they're really interested in doing is cruising around or sunning.

While your boat's put up for the winter, take time to inspect your propeller. Look for nicks and gauges on the blades and for bent or deformed blades.

Small nicks in aluminum and steel props can be repaired with a file. More extensive damage can often be repaired at a good prop shop. If your prop is beyond repair, your marine dealer can help you choose the best new prop for your application.

While you have the propeller off the motor, check around the base of the prop shaft for monofilament fishing line that can get wrapped around the shaft and damage the rubber prop shaft seal.

Boaters should never run a motor with a bent prop. The imbalance caused by bent blades can cause damage to gear case seals and bearings.

Have a question you'd like a bass pro to answer? Jot it down and mail it to "Bassin' with the Pros" at this newspaper. Answer to your questions will appear in a future column.

USM CAREER TESTING—Richard Holt, left, and Brenda Holt, both of Pass Christian, were among participants in a recent career-testing session sponsored by the University of Southern Mississippi-Gulf Park campus in Long Beach. The session was held to help present or prospective college students choose a career area in line with their interests. (USM Public Relations photo)

Clermont Harbor youth group bags 12 sacks of trash

The Clermont Harbor Youth Corps enjoyed a marshmallow-wiener roast at the Bruce Cranmer home Friday night to gear up for their Saturday cleanup.

They were also invited to a spooky movie at the home of Mary and Mike Robbitt.

Their "Saturday Run" brought in 12 bags of litter, having partly cleaned up one of their worse eyesores, the Alligator Pond.

Hardier members and advisors used a boat offered by Mr. C. F. Savard of Perkinston to paddle around the pond and collect the litter. The other members worked some of the inner streets and blocks.

The corps was treated this Saturday to lunch offered by the Clermont Harbor Methodist Church, one of their staunchest supporters.

They also enjoyed a bon fire and refreshments at the home of Poochie and Christine Luxich Saturday night.

The group has made long-range plans that will continue throughout the summer. The plans, however, have not been revealed.

Persons interested in the program may call Ina Cranmer at 467-328.

USM gets grant to improve teacher education program

The University of Southern Mississippi's College of Education and Psychology has received $28,998 from the U.S. Department of Education for a teacher performance assessment project.

The project is designed to change the USM professional education core and to ensure a smoother transition from the training level to actual practice.

The new core content should correlate with the evaluative criteria in the Mississippi Teacher Assessment Instrument, the National Teacher Examination and the National Council of Accreditation of Teacher Education.

A computer program will be implemented to monitor performance of USM teacher trainee majors.

The newly structured student teaching project places students in significant role-taking experiences; provides students with careful and continuous guidance; provides balance between real experience and discussion; provides for both personal support and challenge through instruction; and maintains continuity in programs.

Deadline set for Mensa scholarship applications

March 1 is the deadline for the 1986-87 Mensa Scholarship contest, with awards of $1,000, $500, $200 and $100 to be made in June in each of nine regions in the U.S. The announcement came from the Mississippi area chapter of Mensa, the International High IQ Club, and the Mensa Education & Research Foundation.

Mississippians will compete with residents of neighboring states comprising one of American Mensa's nine regions. Awards are based on essays of about 500 words which describe the applicants' career, vocational, academic or goal direction. Anyone who is enrolled for the 1987-88 year in a degree program in an accredited American institution of post-secondary education may enter.

In addition to the regional prizes, two national awards will go to (1) a senior returning to school after an absence of seven or more years; and (2) a Mensa-qualified student to study engineering, mathematics, medicine or the physical sciences.

To enter the latter contest for the $1,000 Howard M. Turney national award, the competitor must score in the top 2 percent of the general population on a standard IQ test.

The $500 Rita Levine Memorial Scholarship is for women only. Otherwise, awards are unrestricted as to age, race, sex, or level of post-secondary education.

For further information about the Mensa scholarship competition and to obtain application forms, contact Don Clark, 424 Old Lake Road, Jackson, MS 39212. A stamped, self-addressed envelope must accompany requests for applications.

Mensa is an international organization whose primary purpose is to serve as a means of communication and assembly for its members who score higher on a standard IQ test than 98 percent of the general population.

BHS Distributive Education students win four awards

Twenty members of the Bay Senior High Distributive Education Clubs of America Chapter traveled to the University of Southern Mississippi, Hattiesburg, on Wednesday, Feb. 4, where 20 schools from South Mississippi met for competition in 13 competency areas in the field of marketing.

The Bay Senior High Chapter received four awards in the competitive events held. Winners were Bridget Baum, first place, Apparel and Accessory Marketing, Supervisory Level; Michael Grisham, first place, Vehicle and Petroleum Marketing; Michael Kennedy, third place, Finance and Credit Services; and Marti Reed, first place, General Marketing, Master Employee Level.

These students will compete at the DECA State Career Development Conference to be held March 21-24 in Biloxi.

4-H News

By Daney Jackson
Extension 4-H Youth Agent

The 4-H is a voluntary, educational program designed to meet the needs and interest of boys and girls ages 6 to 18.

The program is a way for young people to learn life skills which will help them function as intelligent, responsible members of society. A main emphasis of the program focuses on learning these life skills through the development of head, heart, hands and health.

This development includes using the head to learn to think, make decisions and gain new and valuable knowledge in many areas.

Development of the heart is being concerned with the welfare of others, accepting responsibilities of citizenship, determining values and attitudes by which to live, learning how to work and live with others at home, in our communities, state, nation and world.

4-H members use their hands to learn new skills, perfect skills already known, develop pride in and respect for work and explore possible vocations and careers.

Good health is important to healthful living, protecting the well being of self and others and making constructive use of leisure time.

There are several things that make 4-H the effective program it is. They include learning how to do a job and how to make a decision.

4-H is adaptable to fit any individual, any home and any community. It provides an ownership responsibility. Making, buying and selling are included in many projects.

If you would like to be a part of this growing youth program and benefit from the many opportunities available, contact the county Extension office at 467-5456.

Ole Miss enrollment up again

UNIVERSITY—University of Mississippi enrollment on the Oxford campus is up again for the fall— from 9,004 students to 9,053—a second straight increase following six years of steady declines.

"We're extremely pleased with this increase," said Chancellor Gerald Turner. "Considering that the pool of entering freshmen in Mississippi continues to shrink every year, we believe our offerings are achieving an ever-broader appeal throughout the state."

The overall Oxford campus headcount of 9,053 is an 0.5 percent increase. Undergraduate enrollment is up by 19 students; Graduate School enrollment is up by 39 students.

Giles named Senior of the Month

LIZETTE GILES

Coast Episcopal High School has announced the selection of Lizette Giles, daughter of Mrs. Helene R. Giles of Pass Christian and Dr. Thomas D. Giles of New Orleans, as Senior of the Month for February.

Giles has attended Coast Episcopal Schools since 1975, when she entered the kindergarten. She has won many academic honors over the years at Coast, such as the Veterans of Foreign Wars Voice of Democracy Award and the Bausch-Lomb Science Award.

She is a member of the CEHS Scholars Bowl team, Mu Alpha Theta and pep squad. She is president of the French Club, secretary-treasurer of National Honor Society and editor of the school yearbook, The Pigeonhole.

Giles is a member of Who's Who Among American High School Students and the Society of Distinguished American High School Students.

She serves as a lector-commentator in St. Paul's Catholic Church in Pass Christian and enjoys reading and playing the piano in her sparetime.

After graduation, Giles plans to attend Tulane University and to major in science.

SIXTH GRADE science fair winners from Bay Catholic Elementary School include, from left, Julie Scianna, second place; Amy Lee, first place; Brad Wiggins, third place; and Rene'e LeBourgeois, honorable mention.

Bay Junior High School top spellers selected

Brian Oge and Maliaca Strom were recently presented first and second place honors as Bay Junior High completed a three-round spelling competition at the school.

Both junior high students were awarded Rosetta ribbons after successfully spelling a final round of words judged by Mr. Woods Alliston, school vice-principal.

The spelling bee, sponsored by 'The Enterprise Journal,' a McComb newspaper, and the American Cancer Society, is open to students throughout the state of Mississippi with a winner participating in the national bee in Washington, D.C. later this year.

"Our contest participants were accepted on a volunteer basis from each grade level including sixth, seventh, and eighth grades," said Mrs. Debbie Moran, event coordinator. From there, each grade level presented its top three spellers in a school contest held in the auditorium.

"We're proud of all the students who participated and encourage them to get ready for next year's bee," Moran added.

Oge, a 6th grader, is the son of Dr. and Mrs. Roger Oge of Bay St. Louis. Strom is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Gary D. Strom, also of Bay St. Louis, and is in the 7th grade. Both will travel to Biloxi to participate in district competition later this month.

The Beginning of a Beautiful Relationship

The birth of your baby is a magical time in your life. For months, you've been planning and working toward your new addition. Isn't it nice to know that Slidell Memorial Hospital and Medical Center can make this time easier, by giving you one less thing to worry about....

Beautiful Beginnings

A one-price package at Slidell Memorial Hospital and Medical Center for insurance or cash patients.

36-Hour Stay	$685.00
48-Hour Stay	$785.00
72-Hour Stay	$985.00

Prices include all charges for a normal, vaginal delivery: labor, delivery and recovery room, fetal monitoring, bedside ultrasound, lab tests, drugs and supplies, a private room for Mom and our wellbaby nursery.

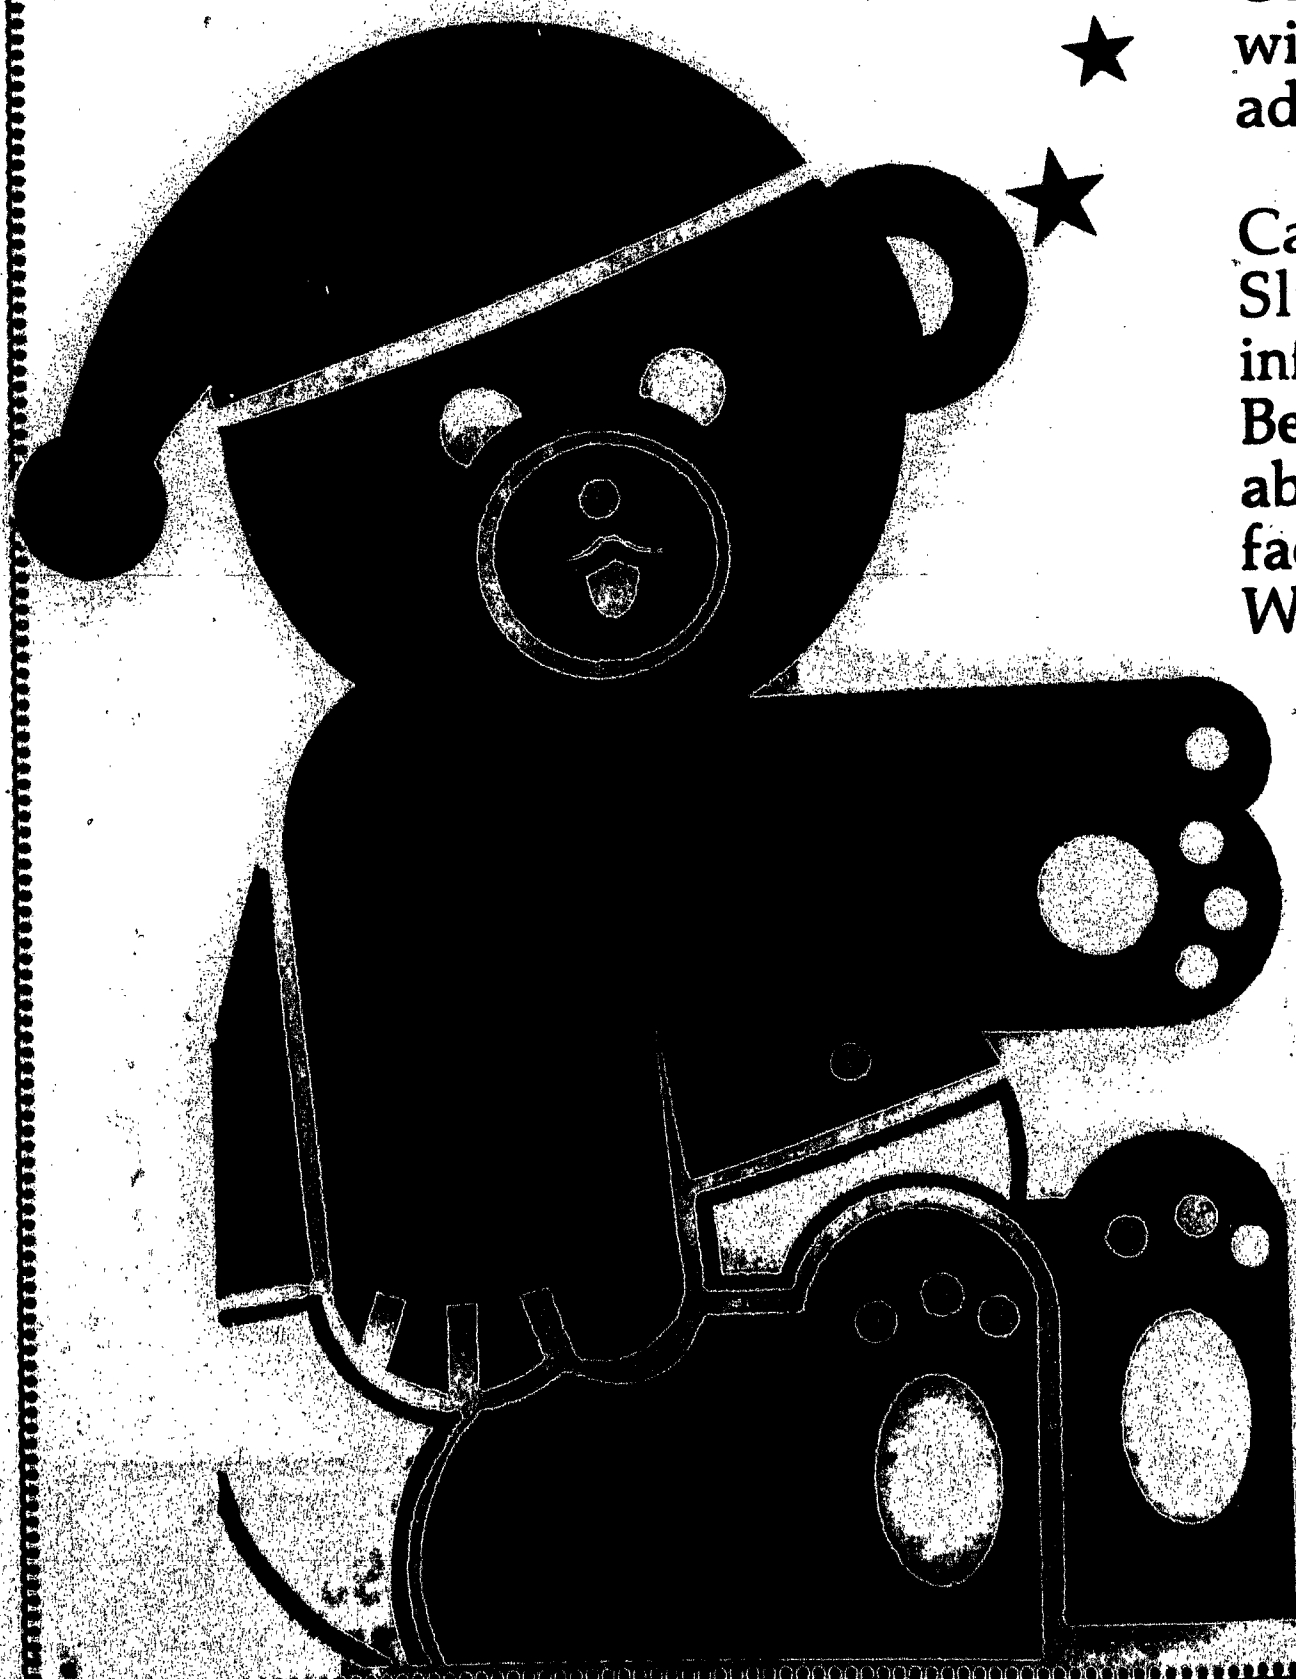

Or, if you like, you can choose to room in with your new baby and save an additional $50.00.

Call us at the Regional Women's Center at Slidell Memorial Hospital for an information packet on the Beautiful Beginnings program. We'll tell you more about our educational programs and facilities, and schedule a tour through the Women's Center for you and your family.
